

Report Battle In Hungarian Border Region

Budapest Says City
Of Munkacs Center of Attack
DENIAL ISSUED

Czechoslovaks Allege
Raid by 'Hungarian
Terrorists'

Hungary, Czechoslovakia (AP)—The government of Carpatho-Ukraine, autonomous division of Czechoslovakia, issued a denial today of Budapest reports that Czechoslovak troops had attacked and shelled the Hungarian village of Orszeg on the outskirts of Munkacs.

The communication said that "Hungarian terrorists" crossed into Carpatho-Ukraine during the night, attacked Czechoslovak border patrols and wounded one soldier. The communication added that the patrols chased the terrorists back across the border.

Budapest (AP)—The Hungarian government reported today that two Czechoslovak artillery bombardments of the border city of Munkacs in a pitched battle between Czechoslovak and Hungarian troops.

Reports of the battle, involving cannon, tanks and armored cars, spread a wave of excitement through the nation. Munkacs is in the territory Czechoslovakia ceded to Hungary two months ago.

High officials of the government met in continuous conference. The foreign office announced a strong protest had been made to Prague, charging violation of Hungary's border. It said the German and Italian legations in Budapest had been informed.

"Hungary waives all responsibility for what may happen," an official statement warned.

Official advice said both sides had suffered casualties.

Buildings struck. In the first bombardment, they said, a hotel, a motion picture theater and the Munkacs municipal theater were struck by Czechoslovak shells.

The Hungarian official news agency said a second barrage began at 2:30 p. m. (7:20 a. m. C. S. T.). It reported four hits on buildings of the city.

(Vague reports of what Czechoslovakians regarded as "numbered" attacks in the Munkacs region were made to Prague. Lack of details was ascribed to poor communications, but the Hungarian reports were considered exaggerated.)

The Hungarian radio side-tracked all other programs to give frequent bulletins on the reported hostilities. Civil telephone communication with Munkacs was broken and it was believed the city's civil administration would be replaced by military rule.

Awarded to Hungary. The scene of reported fighting between Czechoslovak and Hungarian forces has played an important role in the recent history of central Europe.

The border city of Munkacs was part of Rutenia, in dismembered Czechoslovakia, until Nov. 2, when Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, and German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, as mediators, awarded it to Hungary. It was part of a slice of about 4,875 square miles of Czechoslovakia that Hungary acquired.

The Vienna mediation settled a bitter territorial wrangle between Budapest and Prague as an afterthought. The Munich partition of Sept. 29, until it was made, both Hungary and Czechoslovakia were partly mobilized on opposite sides of barbed wire and strong fortifications along the Danube river.

Court Measure May be Revived In Upper House

Frankfurter May be Asked

SEE CONFIRMATION

Not Expected to Join Tribunal Until He Receives O. K.

Washington (AP)—The court reorganization issue may be revived in senate hearings on Felix Frankfurter's nomination to the supreme court.

Although most senators expressed hearty support of the liberal Harvard law professor, several predicted today he would be asked for his views on the Roosevelt court bill, rejected by the senate in 1937.

Frankfurter, a White House adviser since the inception of the New Deal, was appointed yesterday by Mr. Roosevelt to succeed the late Justice Cardozo. He is not expected to join the court until the senate confirms his nomination.

Some western senators expressed regret a man from their section had not been chosen, since the west is not now represented on the court.

Several members of the senate subcommittee named to consider Frankfurter's nomination said they would not vote until hearings could be held. They began a study of the appointee's past utterances in an effort to ascertain his attitude toward the court reorganization plan.

Hearings on Nominations. Senators King (D-Utah) and Connally (D-Texas) said while Frankfurter had made no definite statement on the program there were indications he had opposed it.

Hearings also were scheduled on three other nominations Mr. Roosevelt sent to the senate yesterday—those of former Senator Pope (D-Iowa) to be a TVA director, Harry Hopkins to be secretary of commerce, and Frank Murphy to be attorney general.

Senate critics of the TVA promptly challenged Pope's nomination on the ground no vacancy exists. Senator Bridges (R-N.H.) asserted Mr. Roosevelt had acted "illegally" in ousting Arthur E. Morgan as TVA chairman last year.

Pope was named to Morgan's unexpired term. Morgan now is contesting his removal in a court proceeding.

Appointment of Frankfurter was the third which President Roosevelt has made to the nine-man supreme court. Four of the present justices—Brandeis, McReynolds, Butler and Chief Justice Hughes—are past 70, and therefore eligible to retire on full pay of $20,000 a year.

5,000 Workers Get
Restoration of Pay
As Business Climbs

Pittsburgh (AP)—The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company announced today it was restoring a 10 per cent wage cut to 5,000 of its 15,000 workers because of "improved business conditions."

The boost came as the steel industry joined other leaders in a new year's surge of activity, with Pittsburgh mills increasing output more than 15 per cent since the holidays.

President George H. Bucher of Westinghouse said all employees receiving $125 monthly or less would have their pay returned to the level of June 1. The company at that time cut all salaried employees and executives 10 per cent.

Alberts Sentenced for Burglarizing Church

Green Bay (AP)—Earl J. Alberts, 19, Menasha, was sentenced today to five years in the Green Bay reformatory by Municipal Judge N. J. Monahan today on a charge of burglarizing St. John's church here.

The youth was arrested in the church Wednesday night after the janitor heard a noise and summoned police.

Police Lieutenant Otto M. Cronce said Alberts had admitted burglarizing two churches at Milwaukee and one at Waupaca within the last month.

The three captured after the post fight were booked as Salvatore Luisi, 22, a waiter, Luigi Esposito, 42, bar and grill operator, and Frank Visciano, 48, longshoreman, all of Brooklyn. They were charged with smuggling and possessing opium.

Soderman said 250 pounds of opium were confiscated.

Reveal Firm Bought Insurance on Life Of Chief Executive

Washington (AP)—A board of tax appeals decision disclosed today that a New York stock trading firm bought insurance on the life of President Roosevelt in 1933 on the assumption his death would upset market values.

The board ruled that the premium on the Roosevelt policy could not be deducted from the taxable income of partners of the firm.

The policy, providing for payment of 60,000 British pounds sterling (about $210,000 in 1933) in the event of the president's death, was described by the board as "wholly unique in the business history of this country." It was issued on May 16, 1933, to Jacquelin and De Coppel, New York, by the Equity and Law Life Assurance Society of London.

In its income tax return for 1933, the partnership deducted the cost of premiums, $23,102, as a business expense. This was disallowed by the commissioner of internal revenue.

In line with the commissioner's ruling the board decided that Herman Goedel of the partnership could not deduct from his taxable income $1211 which he said was his share of the premiums.

The purpose of the policy, the firm said, was "protection of investments." Provisions for medical examination were waived along with other questions that could be answered only by the person whose life was assured.

Menasha Anglers Leave
Machine as It Sinks in 20 Feet of Water

Ray Wirowski, 829 Sixth street, Menasha, and Norbert Yingling, 825 Sixth street, Menasha, escaped from the former's car when it broke through the ice on Lake Winnebago near Lake Park this morning and sank in 20 feet of water.

After fishing for 12 hours several blocks from shore without getting a bite, the men decided to drive out three blocks more. On the way the car slipped on its side and the rear end began sinking. Yingling jumped out immediately but Wirowski had some difficulty with the door which stuck on his side of the car. He succeeded in freeing himself. The car, which hung for a short time on the ice by the front wheels, plunged to the bottom of the lake.

Edward Wirowski, a brother of Ray, also was fishing with the pair but had left for home before the accident occurred.

An attempt to pull the car from the water may be made this afternoon.

Three Arrested
After Gun Fight

New York Police Seize Narcotics Valued at $50,000

New York (AP)—A blazing waterfront gun battle in which a policeman was wounded early today climaxed a three-and-a-half months undercover investigation and resulted in the capture of three men and confiscation of narcotics valued at $50,000.

More than 50 shots were fired in an exchange between two dozen police and the trio who opened fire when they were surprised on a Brooklyn pier.

Patrolman James Butte of the harbor squad was wounded in the hand.

A radio "net" had been spread for the trio. Police-laden automobiles formed the trap spring when the narcotics were landed from the Italian freighter Ida.

Three others were taken from the freighter when it docked at Hoboken, N. J., and were brought here for questioning by Assistant District Attorney Paul Seiderman, head of the Brooklyn district attorney's racket squad.

Seiderman said the arrests followed an undercover drive in which a squad of harbor police had won the confidence of the suspects and acted as delivery agents for narcotics.

The three captured after the post fight were booked as Salvatore Luisi, 22, a waiter, Luigi Esposito, 42, bar and grill operator, and Frank Visciano, 48, longshoreman, all of Brooklyn. They were charged with smuggling and possessing opium.

Soderman said 250 pounds of opium were confiscated.

MURPHY IN CHARGE

Inquiry Planned as Re-

Made by Dies

Washington (AP)—President Roosevelt said today the justice department had undertaken an investigation of alleged violations of the criminal statutes by nazis, communists and certain other organizations in this country.

The president told a press conference that Attorney General Murphy had informed him of this effect by letter.

The letter was not made public but Mr. Roosevelt said the alleged violations were submitted to the department by the Dies committee investigating unamerican activities.

The chief executive would not comment on reports that he opposed a request by Chairman Dies (D-Texas) of the committee for an additional $150,000 to carry on the inquiry. The committee has exhausted its $25,000 original fund.

The president, in response to other inquiries, reported progress in formulating details of the emergency defense program at a conference yesterday with a dozen officials from the state, war and navy departments.

Report to Congress. Asked comment on Rear Admiral Arthur W. Hephburn's report recommending 25 additional ship and air bases for the navy, the president merely said this was a report requested by congress.

A newsmen inquired about prospective special messages on subjects not already covered in his three messages to congress so far. Mr. Roosevelt replied he had not decided whether to set forth his views on expanded social security program by message or by letter to congressional committees.

He noted that congress already had received the report of a special committee proposing railroad

Believes Wallace
Made 'Mistake' in
Challenge to G.O.P.

Washington (AP)—Senator Arthur Capper (R-Kans.) said today Secretary Wallace had made "a serious mistake" in challenging the Republicans to offer a farm program.

The agricultural problem is not a political matter, the veteran Kansas Republican said, recalling that he "had supported every one of Mr. Wallace's programs."

Wallace's challenge to Republican critics of the administration's crop control program to present a substitute bill was made at his press conference yesterday.

"We Democrats have a plan," he said. "It is in operation now. In view of the fact that Republicans made gains in the midwest at the last election, I believe it is their duty to present a program."

In an interview Capper said today: "I have always given Mr. Wallace credit for his sincerity. Farm problems are no partisan political problems."

The present farm act has been a disappointment. Out in my state of Kansas, the protests against it have not been partisan but from the farmers."

McDonald Is Elected
County Judges' Chief

Milwaukee (AP)—Winnebago County Judge Daniel E. McDonald, of Oshkosh, was elected president of the Wisconsin Board of County Judges at a meeting here today.

Judge McDonald, who succeeds Judge Frank W. Bucklin of Washington county, was ill and did not attend the meeting.

Judge J. Allan Simpson, Racine county, was named vice president; Judge Ferdinand H. Schlichting, Sheboygan county, secretary-treasurer; and Judge Warren P. Knowlton, Pierce county, director.

Grant C. Haas, Madison, director of the state department of mental hygiene, warned the meeting that Wisconsin communities which do not provide special classes for subnormal or exceptional pupils or do not maintain psychiatric service for school children develop into potential breeding grounds of delinquency and anti-social behavior.

On Tax Increases,
Doughton Asserts

Says Committee Wants to See March Income
Tax Receipts First

Washington (AP)—Congress is going to wait a while before considering President Roosevelt's request for "moderate tax increases" to meet greater farm aid and defense costs.

Chairman Doughton (D-N.C.) said today the house ways and means committee, which originates revenue bills, would want to look over the March income tax receipts before tackling general tax legislation.

Some committee members said they might not feel much like starting on a hunt for more taxes unless the president sent a special request, perhaps suggesting some sources of revenue. But Mr. Roosevelt does not expect to make taxes the subject of a message.

Various committee members also said it might not be a bad idea to pare down by 4 per cent the $10,000,000,000 of appropriations contemplated for the year starting July 1. That would take care of the tax increase which the president proposed.

Mr. Roosevelt said in his budget message that "drastic new taxes" would be unwise.

There probably will be plenty of argument but little concerted opposition to the president's proposal that so-called "nuisance" taxes be continued.

Secretary Wallace and several members of the house agriculture committee have advocated use of processing taxes to help finance additional help for farmers.

In neither has annual nor his budget message did the president recommend once more the reciprocal taxation of federal and state securities and salaries or the restoration of a higher undistributed profits tax on corporations.

Postal Authorities Seeking
Clues in "Poison
Ring" Case

Philadelphia (AP)—Two letters crudely fashioned with printed words clipped from newspapers and threatening Mrs. George Meyers and her husband, a chief witness in an investigation of a three-state "poison ring," were studied by postal authorities today for a clue to the sender.

"Listen George," said a letter addressed to Meyers, "stay out of the courthouse and you and your wife get out of Philadelphia by Mon. Jan. 9, or we will get the 2 of you. You have been warned."

The second letter, to Mrs. Meyers, cautioned: "Advise husband to stay out of court or death 4 two."

Both bore Philadelphia postmarks. The agents said Meyers had assisted them in tracking members of a ring they accuse of poisoning victims to collect insurance. Approximately $50,000 worth of policy payments in Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey have been reported by insurance companies for investigation.

Police said Meyers reported he once was offered $500 to kill one of the men later found to have been poisoned. The bodies of two men and a boy have been exhumed, and the coroner reported all showed evidence of a slow poisoning.

Three persons—including the step-mother of the boy and the wife of one of the men—are under arrest.

U. S. Labor Board
Backs 'Lynch Law,' Concern Charges

Fansteel Corporation
Makes Allegation Before High Court

Washington (AP)—The national labor relations board was accused today of approving "lynch law" in deciding a sitdown strike controversy.

This assertion was made by the Fansteel Metallurgical Corporation of North Chicago in a brief filed with the supreme court preparatory to oral arguments next week on litigation involving constitutionality of sit-down strikes.

Fansteel urged the high tribunal to sustain a decision by the federal circuit court at Chicago holding the company had the right to discharge employees who seized two buildings during a 1937 sitdown strike.

Defends Order. The labor board has asked the court to uphold its order directing reinstatement of the strikers. It held that the strike was due to refusal of the company to bargain collectively with representatives of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers of America.

Fansteel's brief contended "the reinstatement of discharged employees guilty of the property destruction and lawlessness portrayed on this record cannot advance either the immediate objective of collective bargaining or the ultimate end of industrial peace." The brief continued:

"Spurning the legal remedies available under the national labor relations act, the sitdown strikers took the law into their own hands. The board charges the employer with full responsibility for that violence, vandalism and lawlessness thus undertaken as a means of self-redress."

"That is nothing more than an approval of lynch law."

Roosevelt Denies Receipt of Lindbergh Confidential Report
On Air Power of German Reich

Washington (AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh has given government officials a confidential report on Germany's air strength, it was learned authoritatively today.

Army officers declined to confirm receipt of the document, but it was assumed Lindbergh submitted it voluntarily.

President Roosevelt said at his press conference today he had not received such a report from Lindbergh.

The famous aviator still retains his commission in the United States army air corps reserve despite his three-year residence in Europe. He accepted a five-year renewal of the commission in the fall of 1937.

Lindbergh has visited Germany—as well as other European nations—at various times to study aviation facilities. He left Berlin Dec. 23 to spend the winter in Paris with his family.

He had gone to the German capital in October when he received from Field Marshal Goering the order of the German eagle, one of the country's highest decorations.

Earlier in the fall he had inspected air fields and equipment in Soviet Russia. Eleven Russian airmen afterward accused him in a statement of murdering soviet air strength in order to give Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain arguments for negotiating the Munich pact.

His report on German aviation arrived while the administration has been drafting a vast program of plane construction. Upwards of 10,000 aircraft for the army are expected to be advocated by President Roosevelt in his defense message to congress next week.

May Strip Chief of Discretion Over
State Quotas
SEEKS FORMULA

Committee to Consider
Suggestions Next Week

Washington (AP)—Members of the senate unemployment committee agreed informally today to attempt to earmark the future distribution of federal funds with a formula which would strip the WPA administrator of virtually all discretion in the allocation of state quotas.

Chairman Byrnes (D-S.C.) said the committee would meet next week to go over various suggestions to be made by members with the hope of evolving a simple formula that can be inserted in relief appropriation bills.

Senator Murray (D-Mont.), an administration supporter, said he favored placing such a formula in the proposed $875,000,000 emergency relief appropriation taken under consideration this morning by a house appropriation subcommittee.

President Roosevelt, in requesting the emergency fund yesterday, specifically asked for changes in the method of distributing relief to be delayed until congress has given the matter careful consideration. At the same time, he requested that the emergency fund be appropriated post-haste.

Seeks Cooperation. Senator Clark (D-Mo.) said committee members may follow the formula with some changes, by which federal highway aid has been distributed for years. This formula takes into account the highway mileage, population and area, whereas a relief formula might substitute need for mileage.

Clark said also he would propose closer cooperation between relief agencies, seeking specifically to merge the separate United States employment service with the social security setup.

Congress, meanwhile, asked WPA to show why it wants a sum as large as $875,000,000 to operate until July 1.

Colonel F. C. Harrington, WPA administrator, was called before the house subcommittee as the first witness on the proposal.

After two hours in the "closed" meeting, Harrington told newsmen that any attempt to limit the relief agency's funds for the next six months to $500,000—some members have proposed—that sum would mean "very drastic reductions."

Discuss Spending. There was some discussion in the subcommittee of the effect of WPA spending on the nation's economy and some questions were asked Harrington about the relations of spending to the recent business recession.

Representative Woodrum (D-Va.), the subcommittee chairman, said there was no discussion of WPA's policies or its future course.

In a brief talk with newsmen, Harrington said WPA rolls continued to grow smaller and that about 3,075,000 persons were employed on Dec. 31.

The senate and the house recessed for the weekend after hearing the president's budget and relief messages yesterday.

In the house, a controversy among Democratic members was developing over authorizing the Dies committee to renew its investigations into un-American activities.

Democrats Split. Democratic ranks were split, informed persons said, between criticism of frequent anti-administration testimony at committee hearings and pressure from "folks back home" who believe the investigation has developed important proof of subversive activities.

Representative Keller (D-Ill.), an administration supporter, predicted that legislation for continuing the Sioux Falls, S. D. (AP)—The 1939 edition of the Social Directory of the United States, which carries the foreword that "the standard of eligibility has been extremely high," lists the names of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. von Schneider among the South Dakotans this year.

The von Schneiders were described as members of the Minnehaha Country club and graduates of Heidelberg university. Their four children are listed as Mimi, Hans, Greta and Sophia.

Inquiry developed that the von Schneiders and their "children" are dachshund thoroughbreds belonging to T. M. Bailey, an attorney. How they happened to be listed in the directory was not disclosed.

Central Market System Favored In Ammon Report

Wants Changes in Milk Price Law; Asks State Brand for Products

Madison—(AP)—Changes in administration of the Wisconsin fluid milk price fixing law, development of a centralized system for marketing Wisconsin dairy products cooperatively, and the establishment of a state brand for Wisconsin food products were recommended by the state department of agriculture and markets today to Governor Julius P. Heil.

Director Ralph E. Ammon emphasized in a 50 page biennial report three specific suggestions for shifting supervision of the fluid milk law, enacted by the 1933 legislature, from the department to local advisory boards. The proposals follow:

1. That a thorough study of all fluid milk markets in the state be made to develop a system that would "more or less automatically" determine the price on a given market.
2. That this system be devised to function so that changes might be made as conditions shifted without necessity of calling a public hearing.
3. That a local advisory board be established at each market to advise when price conferences should be held and to keep the state department informed on all changes and troubles on the market.

Under the Caldwell law the department now employs five accountants to check records of milk dealers in 33 markets for violations of the law is financed through a check-off of one-half cent on each 100 pounds of milk sold.

"If we are to continue to arbitrate prices on these markets we recommend that these changes be made in the present law," Ammon said.

Details of the "automatic" price determining program, he added, would be worked out by a study of each of the 33 markets.

Ammon summarized the proposal for greater emphasis on cooperative marketing as follows:

"In keeping with its duty under the statutes, the department should attempt to develop a centralized system of marketing Wisconsin dairy products cooperatively. The real objective of this effort must be to return to farmers, cheese-makers and creamery operators a larger income for their products and work."

"Such a campaign should not be directed toward destruction of markets now afforded by private enterprise, but should develop cooperative outlets to supplement them."

During the last biennium, Ammon said, the department has assisted in forming six county councils whose purpose is to "bring harmony between cooperatives. Three of the councils are now operating."

The adoption of a Wisconsin state brand, Ammon asserted, would give protection to the "best in all Wisconsin food products."

The report also recommended that surveys be made to determine the cost of producing and marketing each major agricultural product of the state as the basis for subsequent educational meetings.

Heil Turns Tables on Scribes; Asks Questions, Bans Smoking

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Governor Julius P. Heil absent from his capitol office Tuesday and Wednesday, came to work Thursday afternoon and spent an hour with state capital newspapermen who were piled with questions from the new executive on gubernatorial procedure.

Dressed in a natty green-colored suit, his fingers still taped as the result of the strenuous hand-wringing which he went through at his inaugural reception earlier this week, Heil turned the tables on the dozen reporters present, who spend their days asking questions.

Yesterday Heil asked the questions, and the reporters, not a little surprised, answered. He asked questions on budget messages, about the executive residence, about office procedure and press relations, about fishing in or near Madison, and other matters.

Heil's Considered Vacancies
Hasn't he not yet thought about filling the two vacancies on the state labor relations board, caused by the resignation of Prof. E. E. Witte and Rev. Francis J. Haas.

Told that he has the two resignations to act upon, he replied: "Have I? I haven't seen the resignations yet."

"We can't have a strike now," one of the newspapermen observed. "That's good. We aren't going to have strikes. Anyway most of the boys are working to pay their Christmas bills," the governor returned.

He said that he has not yet begun work on his message to the legislature, due next Wednesday afternoon, but that he thought that it would be short.

The new governor spent his first night in the executive mansion, provided by the state for its governors, last night. He said that Mrs. Heil would not live there regularly, but that he would sleep there while he is in Madison. For a while at least, Mrs. Heil will spend most of her time at the family home in Whitefish Bay, he said.

Boat Is Furnished
Heil expressed curiosity about his official residence, and he was informed that two servants accompanied him while a boat docked on Lake Mendota nearby, is also furnished for the executive's use.

"I'm going to try the fishing there when spring comes," he said. Heil said that he would announce appointment of a press secretary within a few days.

Court Selection Was No Surprise, Lawrence States

Appointment Was Talked About in Legal Circles for Months

Washington—When President Wilson, back in 1916, nominated Louis D. Brandeis to the supreme court of the United States, there was a furor from the conservatives and subsequently a bitter fight on confirmation, which, in the light of the remarkable record made by Justice Brandeis, constitutes a lamentable chapter in the history of judicial appointments.

Today, as Lawrence President Roosevelt's appointment of Felix Frankfurter to the supreme court is being considered by the senate, there is no such fight on confirmation in prospect. Every eye is turned to the likelihood of a substantial majority will vote to confirm and that the opposition will be numerically small.

One reason why there is going to be very little opposition is because the appointment is really no surprise. It has been talked about in legal circles for many months. On August 26 of last year, this correspondent wrote a dispatch pointing out that Mr. Roosevelt was seriously considering the selection of Professor Frankfurter, commenting as follows:

Former Statement
"Liberals, radicals, conservatives all want their particular kind of a man appointed to the supreme court. The radicals stored heavily when Senator Black was appointed for he is in every sense of the word the kind of a judge the radical groups like, namely a man who will expound a particular doctrine and conduct himself on the bench very much as does a legislator in congress. Many conservatives of the extreme school, it must be conceded, also want that kind of judge but, naturally, one who is prejudiced from their point of view. It would seem unlikely that the president will make that mistake again of appointing a partisan mind in a judge and that he will seek among liberals someone who can really be a judge and not a political champion of causes."

"If Mr. Roosevelt is irrevocably determined to appoint a radical, then the conservatives might well consider the wisdom of resigning from the senate, the appointment of Professor Frankfurter, because at least he has a high respect for the traditions of the supreme court and its background of common honesty. He can be expected, if appointed, to carry out the ideals of a fair and impartial tribunal."

This can be said just as well today when the appointment is an accomplished fact. The president might have gone to the senate and picked some of the rubber-stamp senators. He could have appointed a layman, as some radicals urged, and he could have appointed any of a number of men from political life. But he wanted a man who would be liberal and yet be regarded by authorities of the bar in America as qualified to keep up the standard of intellectual ability which has characterized the highest bench in the land.

Skilled Liberal
The presence of a legally liberal like Professor Frankfurter will furnish another opportunity for contrast between the opinions of the Justices. Frankfurter, and few men have made such an expert analysis of the actual work of the supreme court of the United States as he has.

That's why Republican Leader Senator McNary of Oregon said, after the appointment was announced, that Professor Frankfurter was "qualified" and that way, too, Senator Burke, Democrat of Nebraska, one of the leaders in the fight against "packing" the supreme court, said he would vote for confirmation. Incidentally, Mr. Frankfurter did not approve that court reorganization bill and maintained a dignified silence, in contrast to the position taken by Dean Landis of the Harvard Law school, who made public speeches in behalf of the bill.

Estimate $37,870 In New Building During December

Less Than November but Four Times Total for December of 1937

Although building in Appleton during December slumped to about half the estimated total for November, the month's construction was more than four times that of the preceding December.

Last month 12 permits were issued for construction figured at $37,870 compared to $8,995 for December, 1937, and $67,485 during November.

Homes started during the month numbered two and were estimated at $7,500 compared to two houses estimated to cost $8,200 a year ago. Eleven residences estimated at $41,700 started in November. However, the slump in December is usual and was expected because of cold weather.

During the month the inspector issued a permit to build a clinic building at a cost of $15,000, a bakery building at an estimated cost of $9,000. Six remodeling permits were granted for work estimated at $5,725.

The second ward led the building parade during December with $15,000 credited to that area. Next was the Sixth ward with $9,050; the Fifth ward with $4,950; the Third ward with $3,500; and the Fourth ward with no building during the period.

NAMES INVESTIGATOR

Madison—(AP)—Attorney General John E. Martin announced the appointment today of William McNally, Milwaukee, as a field investigator for the attorney general's office. McNally, formerly a superior, was at one time an agent for the beverage tax department.

charged with having a great deal of influence in the New Deal through his former pupils at the Harvard Law school who have come here to important positions in the government. Naturally, he has been attacked as responsible for their radicalism. But Mr. Frankfurter has also throughout the country among conservative lawyers quite a following.

What kind of a judge will Felix Frankfurter make? The answer will be found by reading the opinions of the late Oliver Wendell Holmes, the late Justice Cardozo and Justice Brandeis. For no man in America has spent as much time studying and writing about the opinions of those great justices as Felix Frankfurter, and few men have made such an expert analysis of the actual work of the supreme court of the United States as he has.

That's why Republican Leader Senator McNary of Oregon said, after the appointment was announced, that Professor Frankfurter was "qualified" and that way, too, Senator Burke, Democrat of Nebraska, one of the leaders in the fight against "packing" the supreme court, said he would vote for confirmation. Incidentally, Mr. Frankfurter did not approve that court reorganization bill and maintained a dignified silence, in contrast to the position taken by Dean Landis of the Harvard Law school, who made public speeches in behalf of the bill.

GIBSON CHEVROLET

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—To those who remember the time not many months ago, when the Wisconsin Republican party was not nearly the sleek, self-assured organization it is now, there are many amusing and enlightening aspects in the changed political scene in the state today.

One of them is the scurrying for jobs. Like the Progressive party before it, the party men who lead the new administration will face the problem of the political hangers-on who generally are liabilities but almost always succeed in cashing in on their nuisance value.

Several eager place seekers have already been told that Mr. Heil is taking a cue, whether consciously or not, from Mr. Roosevelt, who made the phrase "before Chicago" famous in Democratic machine circles. Applicants are given to understand that the original Heil men will be given preference.

Moreover, there are, without any exaggeration, at least a dozen take-ers for every job, which means that a lot of them will be turned away hungry. It is an unpleasant fact, from the standpoint of patronage politics, that control of the Wisconsin state government means little in the way of jobs; civil service is too old and securely entrenched.

FRIGID
Much was made by observers this week of the fact that Dr. Glenn Frank, Progressive-ousted former University of Wisconsin president, pointedly kept his back turned to Phil LaFollette during the inaugural ceremony.

Almost unnoticed was the extreme frigidly which the former president exhibited toward his successor, C. A. Dykstra. Photographers, who made the inaugural something of a field day, tried in vain to get them on the same picture.

FAMILY JOB
A capitol tradition will live on under Governor Heil with the reappointment of Ted Pierce, Negro executive messenger, under the new administration.

Young Pierce, a person of considerable culture, became the governor's messenger last year after the death of his foster-father, Sam, the genial six-foot two-colored man who served five governors. The son's quiet manner, capitol folk agree, is becoming as much a part of the capitol picture as his parent's "good morning, suh," with which official visitors were greeted for many years at the governor's chamber entrance.

ROVING EYES
Shirt sleeve notes left over from the inaugural: A couple of Republicans talking about the job possibilities of the state REA office, now controlled by Progressives, but wondering whether New Deal Washington would "play ball" with a G. O. P. agency.

.... Don't be deceived by the LaFollette smiles on the inaugural pictures. He would willingly have been excused, could he have done so gracefully.... Heil's public utterances have a new tone. Looks as if he got that press agent whom he has been advised on all sides to retain.... Robert K. Henry supporters were present in considerable numbers, and didn't deny that their man will be the first in the field. Heil notwithstanding, when the 1940 senate rolls around.... Fifty years ago this week Gov. W. D. Hoard of Fort Atkinson took office, and brought with him two cows from his farm which he pastured on the executive mansion lawn to furnish milk for the first family of that day.... Sample of the new governor's acquaintance in the party which he represents and now heads: William Knauf of Chilton, until recently vice-chairman of the state central committee, had to introduce himself, and repeat his name in the reception line.

FLOTSAM
The man with the biggest voice for his size in state politics is undoubtedly Willis Donley of Dunn county, a veritable dynamo of energy, who loves to make political speeches and doesn't pull his punches. The spectacle of this diminutive chap telling an auditorium filled with Republicans to run their party is probably the best example of many of 1939 Wisconsin politics. For Donley is a Democrat of importance.

Jerry Fox of Chilton, who took the Democratic gubernatorial endorsement from the state organization last summer with a lack of enthusiasm which wasn't very well concealed, is reported to be resentful of the fact that he wasn't returned to his well-paying job as Wisconsin HOLC counsel after the primary in which he lost. That was part of the bargain, according to current party gossip.

Certain Republicans continue to work quietly toward securing enough votes in the new legislature to order a thorough-going legislative investigation of the big state conservation department, which in recent years has come to be almost completely under the thumb of Progressives.

JETSAM
If Tommy Duncan is around legislative halls this winter to assist the bedraggled Progressive minorities in strategy, the capitol won't be surprised.... The National Progressive party's pretensions capital headquarters, which cost the party a pretty penny for rent, has been almost dismantled, and will probably be vacated soon. The imposing corps of clerks and stenographers has disappeared; only a few of LaFollette's male aides remain.... Did anyone besides this column notice the unprecedented speed with which the state supreme court decided the celebrated LaFollette emergency board case last week, which vetoed the attempted transfer of $4,000,000 from the treasury? The case was argued orally on Friday. The next day, for all the world, was a holiday on account of Christmas. Sunday was the actual Christmas day. Tuesday the court received the printed briefs containing the details of argument. Thursday morning the opinion was completed, typed, and made public. On other constitutional cases the court has required many weeks.

Transfer Patients To County Homes To Effect Economy

Vacancies to be Filled
With State Institution Overflow
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—A survey by the state board of mental hygiene has shown that state hospitals for the care of insane are, and have been for years, badly overcrowded, while numerous county insane asylums are operating uneconomically because they have many vacancies it was revealed today.

The study was undertaken by board experts after the group had declared its policy of transferring, paroling, or discharging more than 600 chronic and cured patients from the four state institutions. The discharges and transfers are now being made and will be completed by the end of this month, officials report.

About 450 of the 600 patients to be moved from the state hospitals will be turned over to the county institutions as incurables. The county homes by law, it has been pointed out, are designed to keep the chronic insane, while the state hospitals care for those for which there is a hope for cure and restoration to free society.

Result in Economy
The transfers to the county institutions will result in economy generally, it has been pointed out, because maintenance of the state hospitals is far more costly than the county asylums, which have not such extensive medical and therapeutic facilities.

Statistics gathered recently show that the state hospital at Mendota at one time this year had 877 patients, although its rated capacity is only 790. The hospital at Winnebago on Dec. 1 housed 891 patients, with a capacity of only 740. More significantly, the northern colony for the feeble-minded at Chippewa Falls contained 1,599 patients on Dec. 1, although it was built to hold only 1,204. The southern colony at Union Grove had 791 persons, although it is intended for 518.

At the same time the census showed last month that there are more than 700 vacant beds in the 36 county institutions, which excludes the Milwaukee county facilities, which form an autonomous unit. For example, the Brown county asylum, which has a capacity of 312 patients, had 27 vacancies.

Statistics gathered recently show that the state hospital at Mendota at one time this year had 877 patients, although its rated capacity is only 790. The hospital at Winnebago on Dec. 1 housed 891 patients, with a capacity of only 740. More significantly, the northern colony for the feeble-minded at Chippewa Falls contained 1,599 patients on Dec. 1, although it was built to hold only 1,204. The southern colony at Union Grove had 791 persons, although it is intended for 518.

At the same time the census showed last month that there are more than 700 vacant beds in the 36 county institutions, which excludes the Milwaukee county facilities, which form an autonomous unit. For example, the Brown county asylum, which has a capacity of 312 patients, had 27 vacancies.

Cagers Display Improved Form in Practice Session

Kaukauna Squad Will Meet New London in League Tilt Tonight

Kaukauna — Hopes of a victory over New London's Bulldogs in a Northeastern conference basketball game here tonight rose yesterday as Coach Paul E. Little's cagers showed improved form in their final pre-game practice. The Kaws' offensive measures worked smoothly against the reserves, and tonight the Littlemen may hit their stride. The Kaws have showed flashes of coordination this year but have yet to keep up the pace for a whole game.

A good attendance is expected for the first game here since Dec. 20. The big tilt will begin at 8 o'clock, while an hour earlier the Kaukauna second stringers will try to annex their first win of the season.

Alger is Leader

Lanky Bill Alger at center, with 35 points to his credit in five games, will lead the Kaws into battle. Although he has yet to make the 10 point total he must win against Neenah in the season's opener he's always a threat, especially near the basket. Joe Bloch at forward with 27 points is the second high scorer for Kaukauna.

Tonight's game and one next week against Clintonville on the Trunkers' home court will conclude the first half of the conference season. Victories for the Kaws in these two games will give them a 4 and 2 record, and place them in position to threaten for the championship down the stretch. In the second half the Kaws will play Menasha, Clintonville and West De Pere here, and travel to Neenah, New London and Shawano.

Pegler Looks at Women's Hats And Apologizes to Queen Mary

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York — One of the more pathetic sights of the season is that presented by those poor, docile females of rising 25 years who have permitted the milliners and the fashion magazines to crown them with a type of hat which not only makes them look absurd but makes husbands, suitors and other males ashamed to be seen with them in public places.

Often has it been suspected and suggested, half in earnest, that those who create and dictate the styles of women's hats have hit on this or that freak of fashion with no other motive than an implicit intent to test their independence and intelligence. This year, however, there can be no doubt of their purpose, for they have issued monstrosities too hideous for any artistic excuse. Moreover, they win their bet that women will stand for anything bearing the stamp of style, for, notwithstanding the general feminine verdict that the season's hats are awful and that no woman more than a year or two beyond the age of flapper can look less than horrible beneath one, millions of them have been sold at from $3 to $50 each.

These objects appear to have been designed in the meanest malice so as to place upon the heads of unhappy dolls exaggerated caricatures of unlovely things and to compel them, by force of fashion, to sacrifice a little more than even they appreciate. Hats have been seen which plainly were copied from the old-fashioned china barber shop goboon, the shapless fungus which grows on a rotten stump in the forest, the hamburger roll, the pork chop, the fried egg and the lascar fireman's greasy sweat rag. They come in surly purples with curtains hanging down the back, in colicky combinations of bright rag, lint and engine waste and dreadful jumbles of feathers, glass bulbs and brass.

and to make the victim look silly and pathetic, as one ought to have better judgment than to try to look eighteenish.

Ladies who are currently suffering from this embarrassment insist that they are not actually trying to look eighteenish, but that, after all, a girl must have a hat to wear and that the more they look and shop and suffer at the mirrors in the stores the worse are the hats which are trotted out to them. She starts off with something that looks not unlike a fresh-pulled tooth, surrenders at last to a mess of debris with gaudy streamers and hurries home to hide it from sight before the old man arrives.

Queen Mary Models Now Look Majestic

Fat ones, dumpy ones and average ones who still retain a little of their youthful swish and eyebrow work are equally hopeless in the situation, for these hats all were designed with deliberate intent to insult the sex that has to wear them, and no woman who needs a touch of something in a hat to lighten what she has herself can wear one without definite loss of style and looks. In most cases she looks like hell and knows it herself, but only the half of it.

At this time it seems in order to issue a great, general apology to Dowager Queen Mary of England, whose hats for many years were the subject of coarse humor in the United States. Astonishing jumbles of cheesecloth, feathers, wire and apples they were, to be sure, but looking back at the Queen Mary models over the gruesome things seen in the cities of the U. S. A. today, any fair person must acknowledge them as majestic, lovely adornments which most American victims of the present style could copy with a gain of beauty, dignity and comfort.

Believes Women Should be Fired If Husbands Work

Babson Says Females Have Glutted Whole Job Market

BY ROGER BABSON

Washington, D. C.—Business is today 10 per cent higher than a year ago. Yet employment is 10 per cent less. Why? One vital reason is the flooding of the job market with women.

Babson

The trend toward women taking men's jobs is speeding up rather than slowing down.

I am all for women in industry. If they have the brains and the guts to take a man's job away from him—more power to them. My only quarrel is with cases where both husband and wife hold salaried jobs. One should stay home and make a home!

The trek of women into offices and factories is one of the many causes of our abnormally high unemployment. It is one of a dozen new trends which have been creating a revolution in our business and social lives. It started in 1900 but did not become a serious factor until business hit the skids in 1930.

Since then the girls have flocked into the employment market in hordes. The following statement is hard to believe, but it is fact: The depression is leaving us with more women employed than ever before!

John D. Biggers, who ran the 1937 job census for President Roosevelt from here at Washington, has this to say on the question of women jobholders:

"More than a third of all workers are women—nearly 15,000,000—compared with 40,000,000 men. In 1930, 24 per cent of women over sixteen years old had jobs. In 1937 the total had jumped to 31.5 per cent. It is probably higher today. Actually since 1930, 2,740,000 more women have crashed the business world than would have done so if the ratio had remained 24 per cent."

These figures show that a good share of our unemployed total of nine million is due to a greater percentage of women holding jobs than ever before. Many daughters and wives who are working today would not have thought of doing so in 1929. Women's wages were unpretentious then because there was a demand for competent female workers.

Today, however, in addition to glutting the whole job market, the girls have glutted their own. Women's wages have dropped 20 per cent since the "good old days." Modern machines can be operated by smart girls as well as men. So the women cheaper to hire—and often brighter and more loyal than men—nothing is more logical than to have the women get the jobs.

Getting Big Jobs
My guess is that within twenty years many men holding key positions in industry will be tossed out and their jobs will be taken by women. This change is inevitable. Every business man is familiar with a concern in which the brains are furnished by a woman, even though men serve to give the company a masculine "front."

This trend is growing stronger every day. Only a month or so ago a woman was elected secretary of one of the big western railroads. It is the first time a woman has ever held an important official position on a railroad, even though railroads have more women than men stockholders. Only a few days ago—for the first time on record—a woman was made a director of a big utility concern.

We have all seen women getting into public office, although I think they fit into business better than they do into politics. Two examples of how women can become just as thick-skinned as men are Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins and Federal Judge Florence Allen. They set a good goal because one handicapped which most business women have is lack of ability to "take it on the chin." Men better watch out when women learn to get "tough!" Industry is filled up with so many male stuffed shirts that it will be a pushover for aggressive women to grab their jobs as soon as they get them. I refer to schools and colleges that now especially train women for executive positions in business.

Started in Kitchen
The mechanization of the kitchen touched off this wholesale migration of women into business. It all started in the home and that is where the battle is the hottest right now. The modern husband must be sensible about the whole problem. It is a biological fact that a boy and a girl may inherit qualities from any branch of the family tree.

The girls may inherit her father's red hair and his business traits. Similarly, a boy may have his mother's black hair and her domestic qualities. If the wife has the business ability, then the husband should stay at home and give the baby the bottle, while the Mrs. goes out and does the bread-winning.

Police Squad Cars, Motorcycles Travel 106,625 Miles in '38

Squad cars and motorcycles of the city police department traveled a total of 106,625 miles during 1938 and used 7,381 gallons of gasoline, according to a report of Sergeant Carl Radtke, head of the traffic division. During the year 535 driver's tests were given.

Three hundred youths appeared at the bicycle traffic safety school for failure to observe rules of safe riding. Sergeant Radtke suspended the riding privileges of 29 of the "offenders" for repeated appearances at the school. The police bicycle safety film was shown to 28 different groups.

City Police Make 41 Arrests in December

City police made 41 arrests during December, according to a report of Chief George T. Prim. The armored car was used in making 163 calls and traveled 473 miles during the month. The two squad cars traveled 4,931 miles during the month.

Charges for the arrests included drunkenness, speeding, vagrancy, reckless driving, violating 60-minute parking ordinance, failure to have dog license, parking between 1 and 5 o'clock in the morning, parking more than six inches from curb, burglary, disorderly conduct, petty larceny, drunken driving and failure to stop for arterial 2.

ning! This is necessary to cut down unemployment.

I know that working wives can build up a good case for themselves. It is pretty harsh medicine to fire a smart, aggressive woman whose husband does not earn enough to maintain the family's living standard. If such is the case, then the man should quit his job and learn to be a good "household engineer."

Some will say—and under normal conditions I would agree with them—that our lives are already too minutely regulated by a paternal government. But here is a case where we would jointly protect the home and justly redistribute jobs.

Cut Unemployment
I would not want to see single women and wives purged from office and factory. But I am sure that for a time we must put a stop to those cases where both husband and wife are working. It may be okay when there are jobs to burn, but right now about 9,000,000 people cannot find work and 3,000,000 families are being supported by public relief.

I feel very strongly that married women, whose husbands insist upon keeping their jobs, should resign. Even though there are two sides to the question, I think that under current conditions if such husbands will not work at home, then the wives should get fired. If so, unemployment would drop by a full million tomorrow!

Curb Colds by Avoiding Contact With Persons Already Afflicted

Madison—"How many colds are you going to 'catch' this winter?" the state medical society asked in its health bulletin this week.

"After you have caught a cold, how generous are you in passing it on to others? Unlike charity, this kind of generosity should not begin at home, but should end there. In spite of the unwelcome reception given the common cold, it manages to keep many people sniffing and sneezing at all times.

"A cold is really an infectious disease, although the organisms causing colds are not definitely known. The infection may locate in any part of the respiratory tract, or in the sinuses of the head, with the symptoms familiar to everyone. No congestion of the mucous membrane, inflammation, sneezing and coughing.

Practice Sanitation
"How can the total annual crop of colds be reduced? The first way is to avoid contact with people having colds. Careful self-education in sanitary habits and the constant practice of cleanliness should never be forgotten. It must be remembered that colds are conveyed in the secretions from the nose and mouth. These secretions reach us by droplet sprays in the air through coughing and sneezing, and by direct and indirect contact with other people.

"Since no one is immune from the common cold, we suggest several precautions to prevent everyone. No one has the right to expose others to colds through mere carelessness. Through the cold, resistance to further complications is lowered. Twelve points follow:

1. Cover each cough and sneeze with a handkerchief.
2. Wash Hands Often
3. Keep the hands away from the mouth, wash them frequently and especially before eating and after handshaking.
4. Persons with colds should remain at home, away from the general public. No person with a cold should be permitted to handle food or eating utensils in the home or in restaurants.
5. Avoid as much as possible all persons suffering from symptoms of a cold. Persons having symptoms of a cold or influenza should be isolated from other members of the family as much as possible.
6. Use your own towel and drinking glass. Use only eating utensils that have been sterilized with boiling water.
7. Eat nourishing, easily digestible and laxative foods. Follow good eating habits.
8. Keep the poisonous waste substances of your system down to a minimum by getting from eight to ten hours sleep daily.
9. Get as much outdoor exercise as possible by walking to work.
10. Avoid both physical and mental fatigue as much as possible.
11. Don't make a habit of worry, because worry lowers one's resistance against infection and disease.
12. Have plenty of outside air in your home, both day and night.
"A sound, healthy, vigorous body

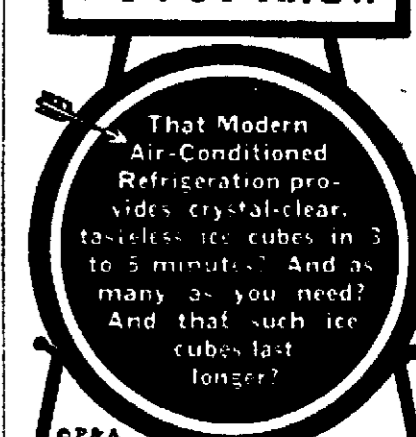

Pension Costs Show Increase in County

Waupaca — Pension Administrator Hugh C. Johnson has issued checks amounting to $14,465.50 to 710 old age dependents. This was an increase of 11 cases and $458. The 16 blind cases in the county received $325 and 169 cases of dependent children received $5,113.63. There were 7 additional cases which increased the cost by $103.83. Medical cases for D. C. A. totaled $521.45 for the month; one child receiving aid of $354.75 for three months care for osteomyelitis.

and a clean, smooth-working respiratory apparatus are the main essentials if you would avoid that dangerous cold."

THE PRESIDENT TO CONGRESS

There was one part of the President's address to congress that should give the country occasion to expect substantial national improvement. It was the declaration that "the past three congresses have met in part or in whole the pressing needs of the new order of things."

Fairly interpreted this means that we are to tramp no further toward the beckoning star of the Abundant Life which so many think was a firefly lodged up in a tree.

We have no doubt that Mr. Roosevelt means what he says. But there is always the danger that Tommy the Cork, Benny the Cohen or Senators Ashurst or Minton, may some evening get the chief executive enthused over something new, another ennobling cure-all or an ointment of mint and honey. And when Mr. Roosevelt is enthused and works that enthusiasm out into a law it is likely to mean more unemployment.

Taking the President at his word however, and that word is somehow fortified by recent election returns, certain measures are due for revamping, modification and amendment, in order to make them workable and that they may bear their anticipated fruit. That is all right. In fact such procedure is highly necessary.

But we have the President's assurance that this congress will not be expected "to try a little of this and a little of that." As a result business and industrial executives may employ the time otherwise devoted to reading new laws, their interpretations, the rules and regulations promulgated under them, the modified rules and regulations, the addition to the rules and regulations, the reversal of the change in the rules and regulations, and all the other pitter-patter of sophomore bureaus, to devote attention to the formation of plans in respect to their own affairs. New Dealers notwithstanding, it does require a great deal of time, thought and consideration to pilot any business or industry around about natural shoals without the necessity of dodging government mines. So this gain must be appraised as valuable.

In respect to highly essential amendments to the Wagner, Hour and Wages and Social Security laws, the country has the just right to expect sincere and honest efforts culminating in substantial improvement.

We have some brilliant men in congress, and more sober ones in respect to the nation's problems and difficulties than in the last six years.

In respect to this important item, at least, the President is starting out in the right way.

SCANDAL LICKS HER LIPS

Morsels about the private lives of those who occupy important places have always been tasty, and just as much in America as elsewhere.

But in a country where speech and press are free the tales can never become as livid and lively as where repression rules the day, nor can they be scattered about with the smack and thrill that goes with the clandestine bantering of them where it is a crime to talk,—and yet everyone talks.

A great deal of gossip has covered the Reich about one Goebbels, propaganda minister. When he appeared at the Nurnberg congress in September with a black eye the story of how he came by that adornment became so general that it finally got into the cables to America. Perhaps from thence on the volatile little gentleman was a marked man; at any rate the scandalous stories have been multiplying and leaping around like lightning.

It seems that the propaganda minister in the Reich is necessarily the master of the cinema industry where Minister Goebbels is known as the Little Doctor because doctor is his correct title. According to Time Magazine a German film had an actress saying that the way to get ahead in the world was "to find a good doctor," which convulsed audiences to such an extent that the Little Doctor cancelled the film's right to be shown.

The most recent scandal concerning Dr. Goebbels which puts him in a hospital for staying too late in a married woman's apartment may be made out of whole cloth and from mud. Many such stories obtain a start from an imaginative individual's propensity to spin yarns. Our interest in the situation is only to point out again that under a dictatorship these yarns are not only possible but highly probable and that although we have had plenty of cases where irate husbands pum-meled foraging Romeos Germany has a situation where, if the foragers be powerful, there is no other remedy.

ONE ITEM OF 19 BILLIONS ANNUALLY

If we had a small country and a simple society with an area and population about that of Outagamie county and similar farms, industries and business layout, the problems that confuse and perplex the public today would probably not exist.

And yet, what is the difference in a national sense except that the area, population, farms and units of commerce are more numerous when we spread our problem across a continent?

In a Saturday Evening Post article reference was recently made to the figures collected by the National Bureau of Economic Research to the effect that for the eleven years preceding 1929 an average of about 19 billions a year were spent alone for durable goods and private construction in this country. This amount was unusually steady excepting that for several years prior to 1929 it gradually decreased. From 1932 onward to 1935 it averaged less than 5 billions. It has never entirely recovered. Even in 1937 it was far from recovery.

Again, if we had a little country the size of Outagamie county and had so diagnosed our ailment as these figures show one of the principal ailments of the country to be, we would most likely take a hitch in our belts and go to work upon carefully nurturing back to normality the spots that showed the illness.

But the federal government, in order to cure this national sickness, which is a loss of about 15 billions a year in capital goods and construction, fizzes around with a few billion a year budgetary deficit, a part of which is spent upon WPA workers at a monthly wage standard that practically ties their hands behind their backs, while it clogs with its hot-house legislation the open channel to natural recovery.

Government spending by way of public works of a necessary character and paying regular wages can be of considerable advantage during a depression, but only to hold the fort until the cause of the unhappy condition is remedied.

If the nation had skilled physicians instead of a garrulous array of goat-gland quacks they would have devoted themselves to finding why the 19 billions per annum in the category mentioned had dropped to less than five, and at least done nothing to prevent the figures from going back to 19.

It is the fault of no one that investors are timid in the face of hostile or clumsy action. It is just a condition of affairs that has probably existed long before the Pyramids. But it is as certain as the fact that lungs are necessary to human life.

This condition does not extend to the necessity of coddling anyone. All that progress requires is confidence that the rulers of a nation who have so much power to affect its course, should be reasonably well prepared by way of competency and understanding and devoted to the purpose of justice and normal freedom of action.

But so long as the tens of millions of savings depositors in this country, who are its real investors, look upon the purpose of rulers as self-glorification and their understanding of practical problems as negligible the nation is bound to remain sluggish and its people must suffer accordingly, while the billions upon billions in the banks remain as idle "as a painted ship upon a painted ocean."

NO FOOLING ABOUT THAT FOREIGN POLICY

On the northeast coast of Africa, not far from the Red Sea, French and Italian soldiers have been moving toward a common border.

The world is a little nervous lest someone start shooting, not that shooting could be accidental although individuals might err, but that it might signal a furious and extensive outbreak.

There are other spots where France and Italy might easily clash to the detriment of world order.

These events are moving on the daily screen before us as we also formulate our own foreign policy. That policy should never receive an alteration at the hands of our statesmen without contemplating our purposes and our conduct during the World war and how fondly and fatuously we figured that our two good friends, Italy and France, could forever be depended upon to help us save democracy.

In order to accomplish that sweet idea we loaned France $3,400,000,000. She has repaid the 400 million. We loaned Italy $1,650,000,000 and she has repaid 100 million. But both have long since abruptly terminated payments.

One of America's most critical dangers is to have rulers who think they can employ Mr. Wilson's plans but with better results.

The Australian appropriation for advertising the Commonwealth in other countries was $515,700.

Seventeen hundred more tourists went to New Brunswick during the year ending October 31 from Maine.

The government now requires that wines labelled "California wine" must be made 100 per cent in California.

About 240,000 impoverished persons migrated to California during the first of the drought-dust boal conditions.

Signs at the Idaho state line warn migrants that no funds are available in that state for relief of non-residents.

DALE HARRISON'S
In Old New York

New York—I have been reading in the paper about how we Americans are bent on defending both North and South America against the totalitarian dictators, so I was suddenly conscious of the fact that there are a lot of South American nations with which I am unacquainted. If one is going to defend somebody, one ought to know whom one defends, oughtn't one?

Take Uruguay. Out of a clear sky I realized I had never paid much attention to Uruguay. It is the smallest country in South America, but that turned out to be just greater in area than the states of New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and Vermont combined.

I had never met a Uruguayan. For some silly reason I had them mixed up with Ubangis. It was probably the U that threw me. So I went down to the Whitehall Building, near the Battery, where most of the South American consuls have offices; and there I met Senor Santiago Rivas, the Uruguayan consul. I said I wanted to see what a Uruguayan looked like, and he said "Have a look. I used to have the same curiosity about Americans when I lived in Montevideo."

New York being the Melting Pot, I assumed there were probably a lot of Uruguayans around, but the senior told me there are a mere thirty. In Montevideo, the senior added, there are about 100 Americans, mostly working for American meat packers, telephone and rubber companies.

Most of the thirty Uruguayans in New York, he explained, either are musicians or are studying music. (Nearly all of Uruguay's two million citizens, the senior explained rapturously, either are musicians or interested in music.) Among the Uruguayans in New York is Osvaldo Mazuch, first 'cello with the Toscanini orchestra.

The Melting Pot is rather weak on Icelanders, too. Although Iceland is only a mere 80 miles farther by air than San Francisco, that country has only three representatives among New York's seven million. The big, grave and courteous Vilhjalmur Thor is one of them. He is commissioner-general for Iceland's participation in the Fair, Hatur Saemrasen, his assistant, is another one-third of Iceland's New York population, and the third is a student at Columbia University.

If you want to see Icelanders, said Mr. Thor, go to North Dakota, Minnesota and Manitoba, Canada. Icelanders, he suspected, aren't very urban-minded.

I had a feeling that one cannot talk long to an Icelander without being told rather matter-of-factly that the story about Columbus having discovered America and about Virginia Dare being the first white child born in America is the way they teach history at Reykjavik.

The first outsider to enter America, said Mr. Thor (who is a big man and one not to be argued with) was Lief the Lucky who dropped down from Iceland in the summer of 1000 A.D. (That is a much easier date to remember than 1492). A few years later another Icelander, one Carlsefni, sailed down with three ships, 160 men and several women, and settled near what now is New Bedford, Mass. Eventually, Mr. Thor related, the Indians drove them out, but not before Carlsefni's wife was delivered of a child—the first white child, said Mr. Thor proudly, born in America.

Unfortunately, nobody thought to remember the baby's name, which is probably just as well, as most likely it had a lot of consonants tangled together (like "thj" in "Vilhjalmur") which are much more confusing to the American tongue than something simple, like Virginia Dare.

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO
Friday, Jan. 4, 1929

Five determined men who had driven the army's monoplane, Question Mark, through all existing records for sustained flight by heavier-than-air machines, continued their adventure Friday, showing no inclination to come to earth. The Question Mark had begun its fourth day in the air at 7:25 the morning.

Fire at the John Dobberstein farm in the town of Hortonia caused a loss of $7,000 Thursday morning. A large barn, machine and carpenter sheds and the year's cut of hay and grain were destroyed. Two automobiles and a tractor were ruined.

Mrs. George Knoke was reelected president of the Senior choir of the Trinity English Lutheran church at the regular meeting of the group Thursday evening. Miss Pearl Klahorst was named secretary and Miss Leona Tesch treasurer.

25 YEARS AGO
Friday, Jan. 9, 1914

The Fox River Valley Highway association was organized here the afternoon at a meeting held in the Sherman house at a meeting held in the Sherman house from different communities in the valley. John Conway was elected president of the organization and two directors from each county on the proposed route were named as follows: Thomas Joannes, Green Bay; J. Sheekard, DePere, Brown county; Luther Lindauer, Kaukauna, C. J. Hagen, Black Creek, Outagamie county; G. H. Randall, Oshkosh, E. J. Rummel, Menasha, Winnebago county; E. J. Perry, Fond du Lac, J. McGowan, North Fond du Lac, Fond du Lac county. It was estimated a concrete road 16 feet wide would cost from $12,000 to $16,000 per mile.

Considerable interest was being evinced in the proposed "Helen Fairfield Naylor" chapel for Lawrence college by friends of the college. Dr. Wilson S. Naylor, who proposed the building of the chapel and donated a certain amount, said that day he did not think the building would be erected for at least two years as the money could not be obtained in time to erect it the following year. The proposed structure was to cost $62,000.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

BIRTHMARK

"On what far bargain counter
Are these babies sold?
Our darling's eyes are gentians,
Her hair is April gold.
Upon her throat a birthmark
Like a purple pansy blooms.
But baby sleeps, unmindful,
While mother dubs the rooms.

When mother rocks her baby,
She smiles at me, and asks:
"Can she be just a 'second'?"
... Then she hurries to her task.
No one but she would suggest it:
For each of the family knows
She thinks her small daughter perfect
From her head to her little pink toes!"

A Bystander
In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—An item not mentioned in the administration's air program of 10,000 planes and 20,000 new pilots is that such progress is dotted with death.

Grover neither disconcerts the local populace nor disturbs other nations.

Private reports from Germany are that the death toll of the Nazi air program is enormous. Training of thousands of pilots annually is a costly process both in planes and pilots. Reports reaching here are that Germany has several times as many pilots now trained as we have making death rates correspondingly higher.

22,813 Commercial Pilots
But why this country begins pumping up its pilot population, the day by day report of accidents and deaths will be in the papers, on the radio and in published vital statistics.

On Dec. 1 there were 22,813 commercially licensed pilots in the United States, an accumulation of several years of training. That is an increase from 17,379 a year ago, incidentally marking probably the biggest year's increase in trained pilots in the country's history. The 1936 total was 15,763.

There are approximately 5,000 military pilots, a few of whom are listed among the holders of commercial licenses.

Now along comes the plan to put 20,000 college men on wings each year, virtually doubling the present number holding commercial licenses. And as the training schedules increase the total of planes in service must also increase. The department of commerce lists 9,721 licensed airplanes in the country, while army and navy craft add approximately 4,000 more.

Such an increase in pilot training, plus the projected increase of the army air strength to as much as 10,000 planes, may double the toll-taking accidents.

Public Reaction Awaited
The army and navy withhold cumulative figures of fatalities of military fliers but the total of deaths in major disasters, solitary aircraft, not including solo and duet accidents, makes an impressive figure each year.

Deaths among non-military pilots, co-pilots and students totaled 165 during 1935, 159 in 1936 and 177 in 1937. The 1938 figure is not yet compiled. Passenger fatalities are not included, since they will not figure appreciably in the expanded air program.

Air accidents, even comparatively small ones, are spectacular affairs and react on the public deeply. As the cost in lives of the new defense program is measured day by day in headlines it will be a very interesting matter to watch whether the general public is so easily alarmed about the need of hemispherical defense against overseas airfleets to steel itself to the sacrifice.

People's Forum

The Appleton Post-Crescent cordially invites its readers to use this column for an expression of their views on matters of public interest. Contributors are subject only to the restriction that their contributions must be signed, not necessarily for publication, but as an evidence of good faith. The Post-Crescent invites the public to make extensive use of this column.

Editor, Post-Crescent: The Outagamie County Democratic Club has included in its objects of organization the following: (a) The welfare of the community; (b) The promotion of better government. There have come to our attention, as existing in the City of Appleton and County of Outagamie, practices which we believe to be contrary to both the welfare of the community and the promotion of better government and practices, which we believe, should be called to the attention of the public to the end that they be definitely and effectively eliminated.

The Post-Crescent of Saturday, December 31, 1938, carried an account of a young man who had, on the previous evening, leaped from the Memorial Drive Bridge and died some hours later. Information which we have verified, has come to us that part of the desperado, which led the young man to his fatal act, was gambling and the participation, not only immediately prior, but for some period of time, in poker games in an establishment in the City of Appleton. Our investigation further discloses that there exist in the City of Appleton, within the so-called business district and within a few blocks of the police station, poker games which operate regularly, paying the house a rake-off and in which so-called house players take part and which games are frequented by a considerable number of persons of all ages. Investigation shows that there are, in addition to the last life of last week, financial wrecks and families suffering hardships because of money gambled away.

The existence and location of these poker games is common knowledge to many in the community. It seems impossible to believe that the existence of the gambling games can be unknown to the Appleton police force. We are calling upon George T. Prim, Chief of Police of the City of Appleton, to eliminate poker games and all other forms of gambling in the City of Appleton at once and to take such measures as will insure that gambling is permanently eliminated in Appleton.

We decide further to call to the attention of the public the widespread existence and operation of slot machines in Outagamie County outside the Cities of Appleton and Kaukauna. The feebleness of law enforcement as to slot machines in Outagamie County in the past has been a farce. Newspaper statements by officers at intervals and disappearance of machines for a few days with renewed operation thereafter has been the program.

Outagamie County outside the Cities of Appleton and Kaukauna is flooded with slot machines. A tavern not having at least two machines is an exception. In the first eleven taverns visited in our investigation slot machines were found in ten of them together with jar draws—another gambling device.

It seems impossible that the Sheriff's office has not known of this condition. The Under-Sheriff, Fred Frank, is out through the County every day and even casual observation would reveal slot machines by the score. In addition Sheriff Lappen has deputy sheriffs in all parts of the County so that information can readily be had.

We call upon John F. Lappen, Sheriff of Outagamie County, with a number of terms in office as experience, to remove from Outagamie County at once slot machines and all other forms of gambling and to keep them out permanently. Knowledge to owners and operators of slot machines that they will not be tolerated is the first necessary step. In this connection and in fairness, if we want to call to the attention of the public that in Appleton and in Kaukauna, because it is known Chief Prim and Chief McFadden mean business there are very few, if any, slot machines in operation and taverns close promptly at the specified time. The same attitude on the part of Chief Prim toward poker games will root out that evil in Appleton and enforcement by Sheriff Lappen and his aids will wipe out the slot machines and other gambling games in the County.

We are firmly of the conviction that the poker games, jar draws and slot machines, as well as all forms of gambling, are a menace to the community; that they breed evils of many types; that they tend to break down the morals of the community, bring hardships, worry and suffering to families and are enemies of good government. Gambling always has and always will be contrary to moral law; it is contrary to the laws of the State of Wisconsin.

We expect that upon the appearance of this article the slot machines will disappear and the card games may close temporarily. We are not satisfied with a temporary shutdown. The card games were down Wednesday in the establishment frequented by the youth now dead. We are insistent that gambling in this County in all forms be stopped. If the present officers are not able to enforce the law and eliminate gambling, we will appeal to their superiors for correction of the condition and for officers capable, fearless and willing to their duty.

In this position we feel that we advance the cause of righteousness and morals and that the permanent removal of all forms of gambling will make for a better community. Outagamie County Democratic Club

Personal Health Talks

EARS WON'T WORK?
Many deaf persons have enjoyed marked improvement in hearing from "making faces" in a systematic way, that is, in regular sessions twice a day or oftener, in private, before a mirror.

I do not promise these special exercises will cure deafness or tinnitus (head noises). I merely say that many sufferers have reported benefits from them, and the exercises can do no harm in any case. Having heard all possible smart-cracks on the theme I will not consider you a dummy if you do the exercise or an ass if you don't. Here they are:

1. Yawn. Throw your face as widely open as possible without dislocating your jaw, a la Joe E. Brown, and when you get thoroughly opened up make believe you are your own dentist politely requesting you to open a little wider please. The object is to produce a feeling of tension in the muscles at the back of your throat.

2. Swallow. Having yawned prodigiously half a dozen times, take a slow, full swallow, or rather half a dozen swallows, of water or of air if no water handy.

3. Monkey Face. Protrude the chin as far as you can, then draw it back as far as you can. Draw the upper lip as far in and out as you can, at the same time dilating the nostrils. Make these grimaces with all possible emphasis. If at first you are not so good at it, never mind, keep on trying and you'll recover more or less control of the muscles of expression.

4. Wiggle Ears. Grasp both ear lobes and pull them first backward and upward, then forward and downward, so you can feel the pull inside the ears. Push the little tab in front of the ear opening in and out of the ear opening with your finger. Now make your ears move by raising or lowering brow or scalp; frown and wrinkle the forehead; relax and draw the scalp toward the back of the head. Do these movements rhythmically and deliberately, each from six to a dozen times. If at first your muscles fail to respond actively, never mind, just keep trying and eventually you will succeed.

5. Snarl and Hike. Contract muscles about the eyes in a squint. Hold it, and contract muscles about forehead, in a scowl. Hold it and contract muscles about the cheeks and lips to unsheath the trusty old canine teeth. Hold it and contract the throat muscles in the position to sound the "K" when you say "hike." Hold the whole frightful thing, especially the "K" for a few moments—but beware of being caught in the act.

Perhaps three minutes each morning or each evening and evening should be devoted to these exercises. (I have a monograph on deafness which contains detailed instructions, in case the printer balls things up or you forget to save this clipping—ask for it and enclose stamped envelope bearing your address.)

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Goat's Milk
Skin tests showed that I am allergic to cow's milk. Using goat's milk, but cannot stand the taste after it is boiled. Understand Bang's disease prevalent among goats and the raw milk unsafe to drink. (T. S. M.)

Answer—Your physician or your local health authorities will know whether Bang's disease (contagious abortion) is prevalent in your vicinity. If not, then raw goat's milk is wholesome and healthful. Bang's disease, contagious abortion, brucella fever or brucellosis, undulant fever, Malta fever, Mediterranean fever, are different names for the same disease. Probably most cases in man occur from accidental infection in caring for live stock, handling hides, etc.

Building Damage Prompts Round Up Of Grade Students

Over Dozen Youngsters Reprimanded for Entering Vacant Structure.

New London—Mischievous damage to the unfinished Borchardt hospital building at Beacon avenue and Pearl street, amounting to about $300, culminated yesterday afternoon in the round-up of more than a dozen grade school youngsters in the office of Chief of Police Harry D. Macklin and Police Justice Fred J. Rogers. Parents of the boys were present at the "straightening out" session.

For the last several years youngsters have been breaking into the vacant building to explore its depths, according to Dr. M. A. Borchardt. Rumors of "spooks" in the building invited many to seek adventure in its hollow basement, questioning of the boys brought out. Entrance was gained by pulling boards off boarded windows and breaking others on the basement floor. Broken windows and wrecking of plumbing fixtures inside constitute most of the damage done, according to the owner.

All Are Released
More frequent ravages of the building during the last few weeks resulted in special vigilance by the police and owner to determine the identity of trespassers. The boys innocently confessed to many of the pranks and all were released after severe reprimanding by police and justice, with their solemn promises to keep away from the building.

Spring street, started as a small church in 1880, the New London Methodist Episcopal congregation will celebrate its eighty-third year of existence during the week starting Sunday. Additions to the building to accommodate the growing parish were made by Victor Thomas of New London in 1890, 1902 and 1910 to gain its present form. New London Methodist Church To Begin Celebration Sunday Of Eighty-Third Anniversary

New London—Eighty-three years of growth and expansion will be observed by the New London Methodist Episcopal church during its anniversary week starting Sunday.

As early as 1856 services were held in New London by members of the Methodist denomination with the Rev. Mr. Yocum and the Rev. M. Himebaugh the founders of the first organized group. Through the efforts of the Rev. Reeder Smith, one of the proprietors of the village whose home was in Appleton, the Globe hall was erected in the village and the auditorium reserved for services. The Rev. L. D. Tracy preached regularly there in 1857. A year later the Methodist was reorganized and the first annual Congregationalists united to build New London's first church and divided its facilities and expenses. Later the Methodists went back to the Globe hall and at times used other buildings.

Building in 1880
Not until 1880, during the pastorate of the twelfth minister, the Rev. D. C. Jones, did the congregation have its own established building. In that year a small church was erected on the present site and has since been remodeled and expanded three times, in 1890, 1902 and 1910, to meet the needs of the parish. Victor Thomas, New London architect, made all improvements. The parsonage was built under the Rev. S. C. Robinson who served from 1885 to 1898.

Forty-one ministers of the Gospel have served the New London group during its 83 years of existence, with an average term of little more than two years. Only two died while at New London, the Rev. F.

City Is Defendant In Damage Action

Suit Based on Death of New London Boy Is Reopened

New London—The case of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Christian against the city of New London for the death of their 14-year-old son, Byron, Jr., on Aug. 3, 1937, was reopened yesterday when legal papers were served on city officials by Attorney Walter Melchior of Appleton. The boy was instantly killed when he touched a fallen light wire mistaken for a firefly, along the road near St. John's place.

An original claim for $7,500 was dismissed by Circuit Judge Byron B. Park last July on the grounds the plaintiffs had failed to file a verified claim against the city. The plaintiffs are now asking $15,000 damages, an action which was announced soon after dismissal of the first claim.

The new claim asks $12,500 for pecuniary losses, $2,500 for loss of companionship and $250 for costs of burial. The Christians charge negligence on the part of the city which owns its electric utility system.

The case will be tried this time before the newly installed Circuit Judge H. J. Severson, Park's successor at the severing term of court at Waupaca.

Deanery Program Will Be Outlined by CYO

New London—A meeting of delegates from Catholic Youth councils recently organized in the New London deanery by Miss Genevieve Smith, deanery chairman, will be held at the parish hall clubrooms of the Most Precious Blood church here at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Two delegates are expected from each of the councils at Bear Creek, Lebanon, Hortonville, Waupaca, New London and Manawa.

Woman Is Injured in Fall on Icy Sidewalk

New London—The only injury reported during the period of slippery sidewalks Wednesday was that of Mrs. Clarence Beaudoin, 115 Avon street, who injured her right shoulder when she slipped and fell. X-rays yesterday showed no bones were broken.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. George Beattie at their home on Shiocton street Wednesday night. Carol Meinhardt, 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Meinhardt, route 2, New London, was admitted to Community hospital Wednesday for medical care.

Dim Lights for Safety

Remove Upper Part of Old New London Span

New London—The upper structure of the old S. Pearl street bridge over the Wolf river was cut down this week but further work was delayed by the unusual weather. Work will begin next on removal of the center pier, according to the superintendent, and a new streamlined pier will replace it. End abutments will follow and finally the bed of the old bridge will be torn out to make way for the new one.

The new span will rest on two end abutments and a center pier, eliminating all structure above the road level so the bridge will appear as a smooth continuation of the street.

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

Vitamin D from sun and foods helps to build strong lovely teeth and prevents decay.

How often have you met attractive men and women who have deplorable teeth? And what a shock to you it is. "I wonder why she (or he) doesn't care for his teeth," you murmur, without realizing that you may be doing the victim a grave injustice by surmising he neglects his teeth.

The sad condition which meets your eyes may be the result of faulty nourishment while the person was growing, or even the ignorance of science. For only recently have the professions begun to realize the serious attendant dangers of tooth decay, what causes it and how to prevent it.

Food Acids Cause Decay
According to a current article on "tooth decay" by Dr. Herman Bundesen, it has been the general belief that decay starts from the outside of the tooth and not from the inside.

Train Children to Do Their Share of Household Chores

BY ANGELO PATRI

Helen loves to read. Every spare minute is spent in a book, any book. Even a circular, a soap wrapper, will do. Louise, her sister, reads in moderation. She can read or leave it alone with equal enjoyment. Mother does the housework and she needs help. Louise is willing, provided that Helen helps. Mother says Helen is to help, of course.

"Come, now, girls. Get at these dishes and clear them away. I'd like to sit down a minute."

"Louise begins at once to clear the table. Helen has the evening paper. 'Come, Helen. You've got to help me.'"

"Louise clears the table and stacks the dishes. 'Are you coming, Helen? I've cleared the table and got everything ready and you haven't lifted a finger. If you don't come this minute I'm going to leave the dishes right there. You hear?'"

"Can't you wait a minute? I'm coming. You make such a fuss."

"If I didn't make a fuss you wouldn't move a finger. You'd leave me everything to do."

"All right. Where's the dishes? Thought you had them all washed, to hear you. When you get some washed call me," and Helen went back to the paper.

"That was too much for the long-suffering Louise."

"Mother," she shouted, "Will you make Helen come help with these dishes? She is still reading the paper, I'm not going to do another thing until she gets here."

Mother had to come, make Helen part with the paper, quiet Louise who was not quite certain that she was the most put-on person in the town. "It would be easier for me to do it myself," mother groaned as she went back to her chair and her mending.

The best way out is to begin when the children are little and train each to do his share of the work. Every child in the family, including the boys, should be given a course of training in household work and management lasting until each is able to do anything that is needed to be done in a house. Even where there are servants, this should be done.

Everything that a child can do adds to his intelligence and his power, consequently to his self-respect. No knowledge, no skill, ever comes amiss. The more a young person can do, the more fields of experience he has explored, the better fitted he is for living.

The schedule of chores ought to be changed regularly so that no one child does the same work all the time. Each should cover the whole field. By and by the members of the group specialize, and in time, divide the work along the lines of tastes and skills, each doing the work he likes best and does best.

This experience and these skills help hold the family together in loyalty and affection. They make

Obvious Rebid Over 2 Spades Was No Trump

BY ELY CULBERTSON

During the past year I have written several articles lambasting the practice of answering an opening two bid with an ace showing response. I have gone to great lengths to prove that this immediate ace showing is not nearly as good for partnership bidding as an immediate natural response (assuming that responder has the values for a positive bid). There are plenty of bidding conventions by means of which aces can be located after the trump suit is determined. Question 31 of the recent examination was deliberately devised to trap players who use the immediate ace showing convention. This question was:

With both sides vulnerable, the bidding proceeds:

North East South West
2 hearts Pass ?

You are South and hold:

♠ A 6 ♥ 7 5 ♦ Q 10 8 6 5 2 ♣ J 10 4

What call do you make?

I was considerably relieved to find that 98 per cent of the answers gave three diamonds as the proper response and that of the 4 per cent that had gone wrong there were only a few scattered two spade bids. The 20 point demerit given for any response other than three diamonds was incurred almost invariably by a two no trump response. Apparently about 700 timid examiners felt that they needed a better hand for a positive response. For their sakes I hope they have better hands when their partners bid with two bid, but I doubt that they will have.

The bidding:

West opened the nine of clubs and, the moment the dummy appeared, South let out a roar of anguish. He declared to the world in general and to North in particular that the latter should have bid three diamonds. North, not a bit impressed, yelled back that South did not know what he was talking about, that his pass to two diamonds had been the only conceivable action. When it later developed that three no trump would have been a laydown, North argued bitterly that South should have opened the bidding with one no trump.

In my opinion North's bidding was eminently correct, even though his contention about South's proper opening bid was not well founded. South's heart bid was the proper opening, but his measly two diamond rebid did not begin to express his fine honor tricks. The obvious rebid over one spade was two no trump. To that North could properly respond with three spades (on account of his singleton heart) and to confirm that he held a five card spade suit and South then would bid three no trump. This time North would pass and the partners would be at the correct final contract.

FRUIT SALAD BRIGHTENER

Here is a new dressing for fruit or vegetable salad: Mix one tablespoon of French dressing until smooth with three tablespoons peanut butter, add two tablespoons of some tart jelly, and then one-third of a cup of French dressing. Beat with a fork. A good dressing for fruit or lettuce salad is made by adding one-third cup diced raw apple to half a cup of French dressing.

Ideal "from work to date dress" is Ruth Hussey's teal-blue rabbit's wool. Lines conservatively cut, there is intricate tucking at the yoke and long strips of the tucking run down the skirt marking it off in vague stripes. It is a dress the actress guarantees for comfort, ease and a great deal of satisfaction.

The atmosphere of home happier. They make the children self-reliant and responsible and cooperative, qualities of high character.

GOOD THINGS FOR THE HOME

Marie Schneider's Tested Recipes

Budget Meal

After the biggest holiday of the year—no money. Holiday Season has been glorious and you no doubt would do the same thing over again if this were December instead of January. But the flattened pocketbook still remains and I know we will have to economize. And so for the leanest pocketbook season, its nice to have a few budget stretching recipes, such as the Macaroni Loaf, and to let the appetite appeal to the meal served the gay, jellied asparagus salad. An adequate dessert is the Apple Bread Pudding.

Macaroni Loaf
Creamed fish, meat, or vegetables

Asparagus
Cloverleaf Rolls
Apple Bread Pudding
Macaroni Loaf

1 1/2 cups cooked macaroni

1 cup diced yel-1 cup milk, scalded

1 cup soft 1 egg, well beaten

1 tablespoon 1 tablespoon minced onion

1 teaspoon 1 teaspoon salt

Combine cooked macaroni with cheese, bread crumbs, parsley and pimiento. Add butter, scalded milk, well beaten egg, salt, and onion and mix well. Pour into a buttered bread pan and steam bake 35 to 50 minutes in moderate oven.

350 degrees F. Unfold on platter and surround with creamed fish, meat or vegetables, or if you prefer use a mushroom sauce.

Asparagus Salad

1 package lem-2 cups canned on gelatine green asparagus, diced

1 cup warm 3 tablespoons water

1 cup asparagus vinegar or lemon stock or water

1 teaspoon salt

1 pimiento, chopped

Dissolve gelatine in warm water. Add asparagus stock, vinegar or lemon juice, and salt. Chill. When slightly thickened, fold in asparagus and pimiento. Turn into individual molds. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce. Garnish with mayonnaise. Serves 6 to 8.

Apple Bread Pudding

4 large tart apples

1 cup brown sugar

1 teaspoon 4 tablespoons cinnamon butter

1 cup fine bread crumbs

Peel and core apples. Slice thin and place a layer in a greased baking dish. Cover with crumbs. Sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon and dot with butter. Repeat until all ingredients are used. Cover baking dish and bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees F. for 25 minutes. Uncover and bake 10 minutes longer to brown the top. Serve with cream.

My Neighbor Says—

After cyclamens are through blooming they require a rest. As soon as the foliage begins to ripen off, cease to water it and put the plant in a cool place until Spring.

A piece of chambray that has been dampened makes an excellent duster. It makes furniture look like new.

If you sprinkle a little flour in the grease in which you are to fry eggs, croquettes, etc, the grease will not splutter.

Apples that are to be baked should be pricked with a fork before being placed in the oven. If you do this you will find they will not break while cooking.

Never water house plants with other than water from the faucet. Florists never use heated water and as you know, they have so much money invested in plants that they must meet with success.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

If you are interested in abnormal psychology, then be sure to paste this case in your scrapbook. Hans is like thousands of other husbands, and his use of "projection" is one of the most common mechanisms in psychology. Don't be fooled by this smoke screen.

CASE M-117: Hans G., aged 52, is the owner of a small retail store. "But Hans is so cruel and inconsiderate," his wife sobbed as she showed me the various bruises where he had beaten her.

"He accuses me of running around with other men, which is an absolute falsehood. He tells my young daughters that I never was any good before he married me."

"Then he will cut me and say I am crazy. He says he'll call the tavern. His wife didn't know this fact. But I learned the story when I found that he had syphilis.

When Accusations Backfire
Syphilitic patients are prone to fear insanity, for the germ which causes this venereal disease frequently attacks the brain. One of the common types of insanity, called paresis, is due to syphilis of the brain.

Hans, therefore, is the person who fears insanity. Hans is the one who has been guilty of immorality. In his irritation and conscience-stricken moods, he bitterly accuses his innocent wife.

And he obtains a cruel delight in making her cry and upsetting her peace of mind till she actually thinks she is mentally unbalanced.

Whenever you find yourself a victim of an exaggerated and persistent attack, begin to suspect the party who is making the false charges. He is often guilty of projection.

Besides, Hans' vigorous offense made a convenient smoke screen behind which to hide his own faults, and keep his wife on the defensive so she wouldn't think to reverse the charges.

(Dr. Crane will give personal attention to questions on psychological problems. Write him in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply. Letters and readers' names are never published.)

padding wagon and have them lock me up in an insane asylum for the rest of my life.

"He has kept this up until I am really afraid of losing my mind. Dr. Crane, I do have a lot of fears and complexes, for I am now 44, and probably a menopausal wife, but I'm not losing my mind, am I?"

DIAGNOSIS:
No, this woman is not losing her mind. Then why does Hans accuse her so frequently of being mentally unbalanced?

Hardly a day passes that he doesn't resort to this accusation, and he continues to harp on it till his wife is upset, crying and wringing her hands.

Hans is guilty of what we call "projection." When we blame others for our own faults, it is termed projection.

This is a common mechanism and appears in our childhood. If a youngster bumps his shin against the chair, he scolds the chair and maybe gives it a final retaliatory kick. He will not admit that his awkwardness brought his sore shins.

Husbands pass the buck in this fashion by blaming their wives, and wives excuse their untidy homes by blaming the husband or children.

Frequently there may be a germ of truth in the accusation, but not enough to warrant the reiterated charges.

Hans knows that his wife has some of the common fears of the menopausal wife, so he uses this fact as the basis for his daily charge that she is crazy. Even though I have informed him that his wife is quite sane, he continues to tell her she will end up in a sanitarium. Since Hans "doth protest too much" about this matter of insanity, it is wise to reserve his charges and see if he isn't worried about the very thing of which he accuses her.

He tells her she runs around with other men, and that she has always been rotten morally. Then he adds the rotten notion about insanity.

Here is the real situation. Hans had been running around with immoral women from a neighboring

'Stolen' Husband Seldom Is Seized Against His Own Will

BY DOROTHY DIX

When a married man forsakes his legal spouse for a younger and fairer lady with more umph to her, his wife invariably claims that he was stolen from her. Thus does she save her face and prepare an alibi for him in case he discovers that forbidden sweets have become dust and ashes in his teeth and he desires to return to home and Mother.

DOROTHY DIX

under their very noses when they happened to be looking another way for a moment to lend color to the love-thief legend. Nor can any one deny that many wives have found that it was just about as safe to leave their husbands alone with their best friends as it was to leave their pearls

For to many women to see a thing is to want it, and the mere fact that it belongs to some one else does not restrain them from taking it.

Still and all the love thief who rates more than an amateur standing and who gets beyond a mild flirtation with another woman has a hand that is comparatively rare. It is seldom that one has the skill and knowledge of how to jimmy a way into a man's heart or carries enough TNT in her personality to blow up his conscience and his fear of Mrs. Grundy and make away with him if he puts up any sort of a fight, or tries to protect himself against her.

So we are led to the conclusion that a husband is stolen it is generally an inside job and that he was, at least, accessory before the crime.

Of course, there are exceptions to this rule. All of us know staid, domestic, unromantic, middle-aged married men who have been stolen from their wives as ruthlessly as a stick of candy is taken from a baby. Left alone, these men would have been faithful husbands and gone contentedly on to their golden wedding days believing in the sanctity of the home and their Marias were their heart's desires.

But a predatory lady happened along and marked one of these Darbys for a good thing. By tricks that are dark and ways that are vain she proceeded to purloin him from his rightful owner. If she was young and good looking, she turned all her batteries of sex attraction on him. If she was older and not so pulchritudinous, she "understood" him and made him believe that the wife who had known him for twenty-five years didn't. In either case she doped him up on overdoes of flattery, and before he knew it he, who had always walked the straight and narrow way, found himself swinging down the primrose path. He never

And, of course, when a husband is stolen it is very often due to the negligence of the wife. She thought she had something she couldn't lose, so she didn't keep it under lock and key or bother about its safety. She let herself get sloppy, and there were other women who were easy on the eyes waiting to grab him. She let home life get dull and she nagged and fretted him, and there were gay places to go to and gay ladies waiting for him.

And so she lost him because she didn't take the trouble to keep him. There are always thieves waiting for pickups.

THE ARMY POST MURDERS

By Virginia Hanson

Chapter 38
"You're Coming Back?"

"I don't think he meant her to be suspected. The eleven o'clock alk was to take care of that. He took the gun because it was a smaller caliber than his own—a service automatic would have inflicted a larger wound, one that he might not have been able to disguise. Later, when he stopped by for her and took the kris, he had not yet learned that she was alone at eleven o'clock. Notice the care he took, later, to establish an alibi for her for the time of the stabbing. True, he established his own at the same time, but he carried it a little farther than that, which makes me think that in the meantime he had questioned her casually and learned of Annie's late return to quarters."

I was silent for a time, remembering little things that should have told me that Elizabeth he wanted all along. The cigarette butts in the kitchen sink; Barney on the polo field, thinking Adam was dead, carrying him in his arms across the field straight to Elizabeth, the woman he depended on; and Elizabeth turning back her cuffs, recognizing the appeal.

I told Adam about that, and he nodded soberly.

"There were other things too," he said. "His reason for breaking with Anne—jealousy of Wheeler. That was that. And besides, Shaw had already said the Wheeler had code was after she started going with Charlie. And the fact that he stopped by for Elizabeth on his way to the hospital—how could he have known she was there unless he had made the appointment? Odd that she shouldn't have suspected something when he failed to keep it."

"She was in love with him," I said rather bitterly.

For a mile or two he seemed to go far away from me, wrapped in his own thoughts. I had told him about Elizabeth and Barney, about Annie's equivocal denial that Anne never expect, and only on occasion receive, anything as a fee for a funeral. It is true that a clergyman does receive a fee for a marriage, but that is quite a different thing, since the bridegroom prepares in advance for the giving of this fee.

A funeral, on the other hand, comes at the end of perhaps a very long expense for illness and with the family facing the other necessary expenses for funeral arrangements, and the family is often in a position where any added burden would be unendurable. At the same time, those who can afford to pay generally do either give a fee to the clergyman personally, or make a contribution to his parish. Quite apart from this, the bill for opening the church, which includes heating and lighting and dusting, and music—whether it be that of an organ or a full choir—is always rendered to the family, except of course in a case where the organist or the soloist is a friend of the family who has volunteered his or her services.

"And that," I said, "was the important thing, the real skeleton, that Barney missed."

The road reeled up under our wheels, we would soon be at the station. My mood grew bleaker. Charlie had lingered that morning after the others left, had waited stiffly, degradedly, until I was alone, then offered me the ring.

"I'm sorry, Charlie," I said. "I was proud to wear it. But—but I'd rather you kept it—for a while."

He was painfully white, and I felt drained by compunction. But only for a moment. Then I told Adam it wasn't any use; he had shouted angrily and dashed out of the house.

I stole a glance at Adam now, a glance compounded of admiration, of bafflement of regret for the unattainable. How impregnable was his glass heart? How great a shock would it take to shatter it? Above all, why—why a glass heart?

"I understand now why she kept looking at my ring, Ethel Curtis. I mean—on the train."

"Goodby, Adam"

Adam nodded and swung the car around the last corner. The station was in sight.

"It might have been you for all she knew—the girl her brother was.

to marry. He was magnificently self-absorbed. His letter told her nothing but the bare fact.

I shivered. "Just think—before I stepped off the train I had that clue in my hands, that the nagging resemblance. If only I could have solved it . . ."

Adam did not answer. The little car nosed up to the platform, stopped. He turned to me, his eyes gentle, his mouth rather grim.

"You'll be coming back," he said.

He did not speak of Charlie. I knew he had seen my ringless hand at luncheon when I asked him to drive me to the station. And the request itself had told him enough.

I shook my head now. "I've asked Elizabeth to spend a week or two with me in September—I want to help her forget him. But there's nothing to bring me back to Fort Havens."

There was a miserable lump in my throat, and nothing more I could say.

Up the track my train whistled. I tumbled out of the car, made a great fuss of getting my ticket, of running to the edge of the platform before the train was even in sight. Through it all Adam strode grimly, silently, beside me, carrying my one suitcase.

I kept talking brightly.

"By the way, Charlie's gun came back—shortly after Lou Orpington went upstairs after her toothbrush. I suppose she had hidden it in her room. It's hard to realize that she was afraid of me too . . . It's in the colonel's den, under the cushions. If you could sneak it out . . ."

I was the only departure. I stood on the step and held out my hand to him.

"Goodbye, Adam, and thanks—for everything."

With the faintest of jars the train glided into motion; his hand tightened on mine. He was just looking at me, not saying anything. He began to walk with the train.

"You promised to write," he began.

His long legs were increasing their stride.

"Look, Key—"

He broke into a dogtrot. His breath was coming faster. I tried to pull my hand away.

"Look—you're coming back."

He swallowed, leaped from the platform to the narrow right of way. He was running now, letting out the full spring in those jack-rabbit legs. He had surrendered my hand, but he was still with me.

"I—I want you to!" he shouted over the growing clamor of the wheels.

I nodded, called, "All right!"

He was falling behind now, he was giving up. But across the intervening yards I saw the smile breaking over his face.

I located my seat, feeling, in spite of myself, no longer quite so forlorn.

Sex Education Begins at Home, Hygienist Says

Social Worker Challenges Parents in Talk At Neenah

Neenah — "The only thing wrong with PTA's and I belong to one myself, is that they don't get their teeth in anything. Not one of you will go to the library to get any of the books I mention here tonight; not one of you will think through one thing I say or pass any information along to friends. The reason you came tonight is that you are polite. You want like it when I say sex education begins in the home. You say to yourself, I wasn't taught all that and I got by; yes, you got by, by the grace of God."

Such were the challenging remarks which opened Miss Aimee Zillmer's talk on "What Parents Should Know About Social Hygiene" at the Neenah High school auditorium as she declared that sex is a phase of life, not a problem anymore than eating is a problem unless one allows it to become such. Parents, she chided, are afraid to teach social hygiene in the home; they say let the school do it but if the teachers dared teach any sex hygiene as such, parents would rise up and exclaim "what do teachers know about it or about children, they are not married and haven't children."

No Set Rules

Miss Zillmer who is social hygienist for the state board of health, declared that she couldn't hand out any neat package of rules how to teach sex hygiene. No two children are alike, nothing is a final answer.

The speaker suggested however, good example in the home, the correct interpretation of love, magazines and books that are good, and she urged mothers to have some brand of courage and belief in the sanctity of marriage so that when children ask questions they will know how to answer them and at once.

"Why do parents become horrified when they must discuss the psychology of the body. The only thing you can't check from the cradle to the grave is your body. Why is it suddenly so terrible to talk about when children ask questions?"

Develop Hobbies

Miss Zillmer urged answers in their own language, a development of hobbies for the children and pleaded with parents "not to trust to heaven and luck that their boys and girls are galvanized against the dangers that come with lack of sex education. The world today isn't new, it has always been changing but the idea that nice people do not talk about sex is outmoded. The greatest number of delinquent children come from unhappy homes and the unhappiness is due, for the most part, because of lack of understanding among parents about sex and marriage and love. Marriage is not on its last legs even if one of every six marriages in Wisconsin ended in divorce, but it hasn't stood on its own feet yet."

"The school does much sex education without labelling it and that is the finest way," said the speaker, "but the school only goes so far, it sets the stage for you, and it is your job to take advantage of it."

Books suggested for reading by the speaker included "The Question of Pelling" by Dr. Exner, "So Youth May Know," "Your Patterns in Sex Training," "Step by Step in Sex Education," and an article on "Boy Meets Girl" in the Scholastic.

The costumes of the entire cast is nearing completion under the direction of Miss Gladys Mahar, home economics instructor. Menasha Cagers To Meet DePere Saturday Night

Blue Jay Cagers Have Slight Edge Based on Scoring Records

Menasha — The Menasha High school basketball team will play its second Northeastern Wisconsin conference game of this week, Saturday night in the school gymnasium, opposing West DePere High school. The two teams have identical records. Both have won a single game and have dropped three conference tilts.

However, comparative scoring records give the Bluejays a slight edge. The Jays have scored 104 points in four games for an average of 26 while the Black Phantom offense has accounted for 70 points, an average of about 18. On defense the Jays have allowed 116 points, an average of 29 per game, while West DePere has permitted 97 points to opponents, an average of 24 a game. The Jays have a minus spread of 3 points between offense and defense. The Phantoms have a minus spread of 7 points.

Both teams scored victories over Clintonville for the only marks on the credit side of the ledger. The Jays ran up a 27 to 12 victory while West DePere edged a 17 to 12 victory. Both lost to New London, the Jays by 33 to 29 and West DePere by 25 to 21. Both teams outscored New London from the field but lost the game from the free throw line.

Kaukauna scored victories over both teams, defeating Menasha by 8 points, 28 to 18, and West DePere by 8 points, 28 to 18. The third defeat on the West DePere record was scored by Neenah 32 to 14. The Jays third defeat was by Shawano 45 to 30.

Although the Jays have dropped decisions to both New London and Shawano in their last two starts, they have shown improvement over the Kaukauna tilt. They lost to New London in the last four minutes and faded in the final quarter against Shawano after trying to score shortly before the end of the third quarter.

Harry Zelinski, Menasha center, is the leading scorer on the Bluejay squad. He has accounted for 26 points in four games. L. Van Sistine tops the West DePere squad with 28 points on 13 field goals and two free throws.

Reserve teams of the two schools will meet in a preliminary game.

Priest Attacks 'Red' Activities

Msgr. John Hummel Is Speaker at Knights of Columbus Meeting

Menasha — Aspects of communism were discussed by the Right Rev. Msgr. John Hummel at the meeting of Nicolet council, Knights of Columbus, Thursday night in the club rooms. He described the means by which communists work in America under the guise of harmless activities such as the CIO and other labor organizations. Communists also are trying to stir the Negroes of the south by making fantastic promises, he declared.

Activities of the party in Spain where they are aiding the loyalist party and their treatment of Catholics there were described as he saw it several years ago. He pointed out that paradoxically the communists profess they are opposed to war, yet Russia, the leading communist country, is one of the most active in preparation for war. A general discussion followed his talk.

Joseph Miller, social chairman of the knights, will have charge of arrangements for the "Friday the Thirteenth" dance to be held by the council. He will be assisted by James Sensenbrenner, J. C. Hyland, Dan Baenke and Leslie Remmel.

Dim Lights for Safety

Miss Zillmer Champions Youth In Talk to Neenah Rotarians

Neenah — Urging more recreation for the young people as a protection against sex misconduct, Aimee Zillmer, Madison, a member of the hygiene department of the state board of health, became the champion of youth in a talk before the Neenah Rotary club Thursday noon at the Valley Inn.

Miss Zillmer blamed sex misconduct on the present economic system, pointing out that years ago the average age for a young man to marry was 17 while today it is 27, 10 years more.

In her talk, "Is Youth So Bad?" she urged the Rotarians not to be too critical of youth unless they do something to back it up. She listed the points on the program of her department, legislation, medication, protection and education, and she confined most of her address to the last two points.

The social worker especially condemned parents' criticism of other children when their own children may be doing the same thing. "We are apt to be critical," she pointed out, "because we know the bad spots in life as well as the things in which we can become involved, but we don't do anything about it as far as the children are concerned."

Discussing syphilis and illegitimacy, Miss Zillmer pointed out that there are four babies born out of wedlock every day in Wisconsin, making one out of 42 babies born illegitimate. She said that noted doctors claim that one out of every 10 persons in the United States have had or will have syphilis.

If expectant mothers, affected with the disease, would obtain treatment during pregnancy, 95 per cent of the babies wouldn't suffer, she claimed.

She said that surveys show that 48 per cent of those who contract the disease are between the ages of 15 and 25 while 88 per cent are between the ages of 15 and 30.

If the economic system could be changed so that people could marry when they are younger, most of this misconduct would be eliminated, Miss Zillmer told the Rotarians. She said she would like to see a program for "young age security."

Menasha Township Boasts Lowest Rate In Winnebago County

Menasha—The town of Menasha, with a tax rate of $5.91 per thousand, has the lowest tax rate for any unit of government in Winnebago county, according to the reports filed with A. E. Hedke, Winnebago county clerk. The rate in the town of Menasha is higher than last year when it was $4.09.

Taxes in the town are being levied only to pay the county tax as there are sufficient funds in the treasury to carry on the township activities without special assessment. The rate is higher this year because the amount to be raised for county taxes is $38,536.73 as compared with $22,877.87 a year ago. The assessed valuation of the township also took a jump, increasing from $2,327,352 to $4,048,122, due to completion of the Lakeview mill of the Kimberly-Clark corporation.

The tax rate in the town of Neenah also is higher than in a year ago. The rate for 1939 has been set at $15.26 a thousand as compared with $15.22 a year ago. The aggregate tax roll for the year is $22,849.00 while a year ago it was $19,930.

The W.P.A. Problem: Vote Seekers, Job Seekers

It is plain that Senator Sheppard's committee has no very great hopes that it has found a way to stop politicians from using agencies like the WPA to get themselves elected. The committee makes some sixteen recommendations all of which would make it still more illegal for politicians to buy votes with jobs and to collect campaign funds from job holders. But the committee prefaces its recommendations with the statement that these new laws "be prepared to make impossible, so far as legislation can do so, further extension of the character." That amounts to saying that legislation of this kind probably cannot accomplish very much, and that in this sector of our public life we must resign ourselves to chronic scandal punctuated and relieved now and then by explosions of righteous indignation.

And indeed Senator Sheppard's committee is right in promising no important result from legislation which seeks to cure this evil by dealing in more and more detail, more and more misdemeanors and felonies and by more and more threats of punishment. The fact of the matter is that government in the United States, both Federal and local, is authorized to employ a great many voters. A large number of these employees are in effect hired and fired by elected officials, and the temptation of the politicians to make jobs depend on votes and of the job seekers to make their votes depend on jobs is bound to be very strong. What ever they may profess in their public statements, as practical men they are bound to feel as Lord Palmerton did about the highest order of English knighthood that "there is no damned nonsense about merit in the case of the garter."

The heart of the problem is this: Here are men who have votes and want jobs. Here are men who want votes and have jobs. A tendency to come together and exchange favors will inevitably result. Laws may suppress the crudest forms of bribery and coercion, and public opinion when aroused by sensational incidents may impose a certain etiquette of decency. But the essential problem will not be touched by prohibitory laws. A government that depends on votes and has numerous jobs to fill will always be under the alternating pressure of the Sheppard committee has even considered.

For if we are to continue to be governed by the American intention, and if we are also to put so many citizens on the public pay rolls that they may be able to hold the balance of power and decide the outcome of elections, then we may have to look to something more than prohibitory laws to break the connection between votes and jobs.

Something Drastic

No doubt public opinion is not now ready for a more decisive solution, and most men will feel as I do, I should suppose, that they are by no means ready to adopt a specific program. But, granting all that, it will, I think, clearly our thinking on this matter if we realize what is in principle, however fantastic it may at first sound, the radical way to break the connection between votes and public jobs.

It is in principle to disfranchise men during the period when they are running for office or are holding public jobs. No doubt this sounds shocking at first, and it would be shocking if the principle were applied only, as some have suggested, to the unemployed on relief jobs. But it would not be so shocking if it applied to all job holders whose jobs depend upon being elected or upon appointment by elected officials. This would in principle disfranchise not for life of course but for the period when they are on the public pay roll. All public job holders not in the Civil Service. It would include all from a candidate for President to a candidate for the W. P. A.

Granting that this is at the moment a fantastic idea, I submit that it will have to be considered if we are to begin to think clearly and effectively about a problem which is bound to become more and more important as time goes on. It is perhaps the paramount political problem confronting the democratic peoples, and the failure to solve it elsewhere has been a decisive cause of the failure of democracy.

We are not now at such a crisis here. But the day may yet come when it may be necessary to do something drastic about votes and public jobs if the people are to maintain their control over the ever more elaborate government that they are calling into being. They will find in the end that when a deciding portion of the voters are part of the government, it will be the government that controls the electorate and not the electorate and the government.

For my own part, though I recognize the obvious practical objections, I can find no valid moral objection to the idea of denying the vote to a man who is a candidate for public office or is in public office by means of votes. I should not feel that he was being deprived of an inalienable right. For he can recover his right at any time by returning to the status of a private citizen.

On the other hand, it is in principle objectionable, and in practice it is often scandalous, that a man should exercise his franchise as a citizen when he has such a direct and personal stake in the consequences of his vote. On the bench a judge disqualifies himself when he has a personal connection with the case before him; a juror is rejected when he has a personal connection with the case; and in an election in a club or in a private society a man thinks it not very decent to vote for himself.

The citizen when he is voting ought in theory at least to be no less personally disinterested than a judge or a juror. And when he remembers that the fate of the nation is staked upon the decisions of the voters, it is not undemocratic, on the contrary it is most truly democratic, to say that the issues should not be decided by voters who are thinking of their own jobs.

4-Evening Plan for Yule Shopping Seen

Retailers of Appleton, by a 2-1 majority, favor the opening of stores four evenings before Christmas of this year rather than six, according to ballots received at the office of Kenneth H. Corbett, Appleton Chamber of Commerce secretary.

If the favored plan is adopted, the stores will be open starting Wednesday night preceding Christmas of the year through Saturday night. Christmas comes on Monday this year.

If the morning coffee seems to have lost its pep, perhaps the pot needs attention. Scald it at least once a week—twice is better. Purify for an hour or longer directly in the sunlight.

Change Name of State Children's Aid Group

The "Children's Aid Society of Wisconsin" is the new name of the state-wide non-sectarian organization known for many years as the Children's Home and Aid society. The change was voted at the annual meeting held recently by the organization which has a district office in Appleton.

The chief purpose of making this change was to correct the impression that the word "home" in the name indicated an institution in which children lived who were taken into care. For many years the society has conducted no institutions, but foster family homes are used instead. There are about 150 such homes approved and available for us at any time by the children's workers in different sections of the state.

Oshkosh Educator Speaks at Chilton

Kiwanis Club Hears Talk On 'Realism Versus Sentimentalism'

Chilton — At the regular meeting of the Kiwanis club at Hotel Chilton Tuesday evening, Dr. John Goggins, retiring president, delivered his closing address in which he stressed the high ideals and standards of Kiwanis, and acted as installing officer. He presented the new president, F. F. Schlosser, with the insignia of his office. Former Lieutenant Governor A. Seiden-splinger of Sheboygan spoke briefly on the administration of Dr. Goggins. Dr. Goggins is the new lieutenant governor of this district.

The 17 teachers of the public school were guests of the Kiwanis club. Prof. Nevis S. James of the Oshkosh State Teachers' college, was the guest speaker. Taking as his theme "Realism Versus Sentimentalism," the speaker gave his audience the background that is shaping the social, economic and political life of our nation. Sentimentalism has been a powerful motive in shaping our national developments but in the long view, realism is the final determinant, he asserted. The growth of corporations, the growth of the public school system and the growth and development of mass production have been and are the three great determining factors that have made the America of today, the speaker declared.

George C. Hume, who has been in poor health the last few months, was taken to Rochester, Minn., Wednesday for observation and treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Grotzinger and family of Racine spent a few days here with the former's sister, Mrs. Lillian Marsh and other relatives. They are on their way to the Hawaiian islands for a vacation, and will spend several weeks visiting the former's mother and brother, Dr. Roland Grotzinger in Los Angeles.

The Rev. A. E. Pfisum is spending the week in Chicago and East Chicago with friends. He was located at East Chicago, Ind., for four years before coming to Chilton.

The newly elected county officers assumed their offices on Tuesday. The only change is in the office of district attorney, Edward Eick being succeeded by Donald Bonk.

Your Birthday

"CAPRICORN"

If January 7 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:45 a. m. to 12:45 p. m.; from 2:45 to 5:45 p. m., and from 7:45 to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:45 to 10:45 a. m., from 5:45 to 7:45 p. m., and from 9:45 to 11:45 p. m.

This is likely to be a poor day for making any attempt to bluff or to deceive anyone. Revenge may be sweet, but this day it is apt to be such a bitter-sweetness that it will leave a very disagreeable taste. Possibly through a premonition of some kind, fastidiousness might keep you from making a regrettable mistake. Be open-minded. Appetites should be good and will be easily aroused. Overindulgence must be guarded against, if its penalty is not to be paid. Money will seem to have wings unless it is held on to tightly. The average persons probably will view compliments with suspicion, so be slow in handing them out. Married and engaged couples, as well as those who are entertaining hopes for their matrimonial future, must avoid contradicting each other, if quarrels are to be avoided.

If a woman and January 7 is your birthday, you can easily drift into the habit of being late for engagements, and putting things needing attention off until the last minute. You should be able to correct your mistakes. You, more than likely, have a talent for artistically arranging furniture, bric-a-brac and pictures. You ought to have excellent taste, especially in the selection of wearing apparel. You may have sufficient wit and humor to sustain an interesting conversation without resorting to gossip or morbid subjects, either of which might endanger your popularity. Scientific or social welfare work, teaching, lecturing, writing, selling, acting or radio broadcasting may have the golden opportunity for which you might be seeking. Your domestic and matrimonial affairs are probably all that you could want them to be.

The child born on January 7, is usually born under conditions that give great promise for a happy and prosperous future. Generally possessing more than average intelligence few obstacles are great enough to handicap it.

If a man and January 7 is your natal day, the spirit of generosity is more than likely your outstanding characteristic. Firm in your resolutions, some people might think you inclined to be obstinate. Law, chemistry, engineering, medicine, contracting, painting, promoting, journalism or theatrical work may provide the best medium for realizing your greatest ambition.

Clapper Warns Against Mixing Emotions With Defense Needs

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—This latest message of Roosevelt's boldly proposes economic measures against aggressor nations. A year ago last fall, in his Chicago speech, Roosevelt threw out cautiously as a trial balloon a vague suggestion that aggressor nations might be quarantined. The country recoiled and the administration retreated and confined itself to hurling well-deserved words at the dictators. Time marches on. Much happens. Now Roosevelt moves boldly out in front again, this time with the suggestions that we use economic pressure against the aggressors. That would involve a reversal of the purpose behind existing neutrality legislation which was to keep out and keep hands off other people's wars.

Raymond Clapper

In this latest message, Roosevelt said we cannot let forever pass "without effective protest, acts of aggression against sister nations—acts which automatically undermine us all." He went on to say that there are many methods, short of war, and "more effective than mere words," of bringing home to aggressor governments the aggregate sentiments of our own people.

He suggested modification of the neutrality law to permit use of our economic power in behalf of democracies and against dictators. That, in essence, is a proposal to resort to economic war, without accompanying military action. That is the heart of the foreign affairs portion of Roosevelt's message and the fundamental change of policy that he proposes. Action by congress would be necessary to put such a policy into effect.

Preceding this proposal, the message advanced as a reason for it the menace of the dictatorships. We are not menaced physically by threatened military attack and Roosevelt did not attempt to make a case on that point. Religion, democracy and international good faith are menaced. There comes a time, the president said, when men "must prepare to defend not their homes alone but the tenets of faith and humanity on which their churches, their governments and their very civilization are founded."

That raises a question which needs thorough airing before conclusions are accepted. We don't have to go into the European line-up to protect our democracy, our freedom of religion or any of our ideals. Are we interested in waging a holy war? Are our homes menaced because Hitler is trying to make Germany go pagan? Are we going to try again to impose democracy on Germany as we did in 1917? This is dangerous dynamite to play with, and we ought to know what we are doing before we go overboard again.

There can be only two real reasons for our taking action against the aggressor nations.

One would be the expectation that we should jump in now and beat Germany, or Italy or Japan, or all three, to the draw. No balanced person whose views are well based anticipates any military attack upon the United States within the foreseeable future. We need adequate defense, not against expected attack but to protect ourselves if the unexpected should happen.

The other reason for intervening in Europe now would be to help Great Britain and France. It may be that the American people want to do that. But if so our action should be taken clearly for that reason and not for some idea that we are saving Christianity or democracy.

This Is No Time

To Aggravate Emotions

It is one thing to defend the western hemisphere. It is one thing to prefer democracy for ourselves and freedom of religion. But it is something else to embark upon an economic crusade to impose them upon other nations. Russia has a dictatorship, and suppresses the church and is atheistic. But we are not thinking of moving against Russia as is proposed against Germany, Italy and Japan.

This is a time of strong emotions, so thoroughly do we as a people disapprove of what Hitler is doing. But it is no time to aggravate and inflame those emotions and to use them as the basis for a policy which, if it is to be adopted, will be actually for other reasons than the ones which were talked about in the annual message.

Defense of the western hemisphere is the essential thing. Whether we are prepared to go to the assistance of England and France and to employ economic weapons against Germany is another question that ought to be considered as such and not as something else.

IV—Tunisia's Holy City

More than three-fourths of the people of Tunisia are Arabs or Berbers, and almost all of these follow the Mohammedan faith. They spend their time taking care of farms, orchards and livestock, also in making rugs, leather goods, woolen cloth and pottery.

Caravan tribesmen playing game of "Keeps" during rest in Tunis.

Although we hear more about Tunis than the rest of the colony, nine-tenths of the people live outside the largest city. More than 3,000,000 acres in the country are used for growing crops of wheat and barley.

Sixteen million olive trees, and more than 2,000,000 date palms supply the olives and dates which are so important in the commerce of Tunisia. In addition there are many lemon, orange and cork trees.

Tunisia contains mountains, deserts and oases. The largest river is 300 miles long, and flows into the Mediterranean sea.

In the east-central part of Tunisia is one of the holy cities of the Mohammedan world. It is named Kairouan (pronounced "kerwahn") and is almost 1,300 years old.

Kairouan has a population of only about 20,000, but tens of thousands of pilgrims visit it each year, some of them coming from Egypt. Many Mohammedans who cannot make a trip to Mecca, the birthplace of Mohammed, journey to this holy city instead. It has big walls around it, and contains score of mosques.

The largest mosque is known as the Mosque of Sidi Okla, also as the Great Mosque. It covers three acres of ground, and has courtyards paved with marble. There are fountains, and where people are expected to wash their hands, faces and feet before they enter the building.

In one courtyard of the Great Mosque is a stone sundial which was made hundreds of years ago. An old man watches it, and when the shadow is at the proper place he gives a signal. Then another man cries out words which tell the faithful that the hour of prayer has come. Here are the words the men cry:

"Ash hadu illa ill Allaha, wa ash hadu inna Mohammed an rasool Allah!"

Another famous church in Tunisia's holy city is the Mosque of Sidi Sahab, also called "Mosque of the Barber." Sidi Sahab lived at the same time as Mohammed, and was one of his good friends. It seems he never did any work as a barber, except to take a few of three hairs of the prophet's beard.

Legend says Mohammed gave those three hairs to Sidi Sahab, and that they were buried with "the barber" in a tomb in this very mosque. One hair, we are told, was laid on his lips, another over his heart, another on his right arm. This is supposed to mean that he gave his voice, his love and his strong right arm to the service of his master.

TONIGHT'S GAMES
Green Bay East at Appleton.
Fond du Lac at Green Bay West.
Manitowoc at Sheboygan Central.
Sheboygan North at Oshkosh.

APPLETON High school cagers and one of their bitterest enemies, Green Bay East, will clash at the new gymnasium this evening as the Terrors attempt to knock the Red Devils out of first place in conference standings. The game will start at 8:15 and be preceded by a preliminary at 7:15 featuring reserve squads of the schools.

The evening also will be observed as "Mother and Dad night" and parents of the first squad cagers will be guests of the high school, which will occupy a special section and probably will be introduced between halves.

Green Bay East comes here with the reputation of having beaten Oshkosh this season, and that really is an accomplishment. Numerous reasons have been offered for the upset but nevertheless it proved East can be potent.

The Red Devils are reported to have a fast, well-coached team paced by Don Josephs. They will use a fast breaking offense, whenever the opportunity presents itself, and Appleton often has been left flat-footed by the tactics. East also boasts a couple lads who can shoot from out on the floor, and any of the players can sink short shots.

Berg Names Lineup
Coach George Berg of East watched Appleton tangle with Wausau last week and has shifted his lineup to meet Appleton's strength. He has indicated Alex Manchek will be used at one forward and Don Josephs at the other, both being fast and fairly tall. Jim Gerhard will work the pivot position with George Ford and Noel Olson at the guards. Olson was East's all-conference full-back last fall.

Appleton drills of the last week haven't been impressive. As a matter of fact Coach Joseph Shields was ready to sell his squad at a dime a dozen after his showing Wednesday afternoon. Yesterday's workout was a trifle better.

Indications are that Bill Besch, who has been kept out of a suit for the last couple weeks, will be able to play a few minutes in each half. It will be his first appearance since the Sheboygan North game here. In that event Besch and Warren Buesing will work at the center post with Buesing at forward when Besch shows. The other forwards will be Bud Werner and Allen Fraser, the latter one of the high point scorers in the Valley conference. The guards will be Bob Bailey and Bob Morris, two veterans.

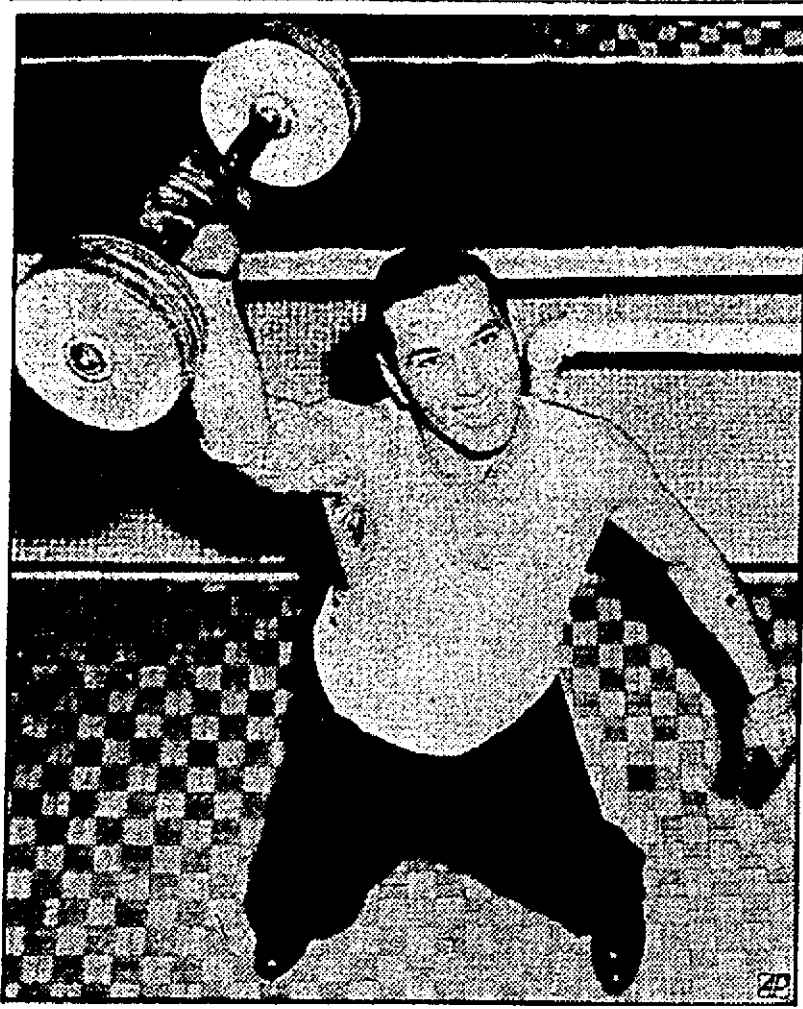

East-Appleton scores over the years are up something like this:
1924—East 12, Appleton 23
1925—East 23, Appleton 19
1926—East 16, Appleton 18

Kimberly and Niagara Cagers Battle at Clubhouse Sunday

KIMBERLY—The Kimberly AA champs will meet Niagara Northern Gaels at the clubhouse Sunday afternoon. Once again these traditional rivals will battle it out at Kimberly and there is every reason to expect a great game as the two squads ever have played. The record of the Papermakers is well known and fans may be sure that Niagara never will send a poor team here. The Gaels are the class of upper Michigan and Wisconsin.

Niagara is well aware of the reputation of the Kimberly team and is coming full strength to break the Papermakers' winning streak. Recently, in a game between the Northern Gaels and Escanaba, the Michigan squad was leading 27 to 11 late in the third period. Then Niagara proceeded to dump in 18 points while holding its opponents scoreless and won.

Every man on the Kimberly team has been going strong. The team has four wins this season over great teams and no defeat. It is out to show that it is the state amateur champion and intends to repeat.

The main game will get underway at 3 o'clock with the preliminary getting started at 2 o'clock. The latter will show the Holy Name grade school team coached by Father Hietpas.

The opponent has not been named. Reserved seats on the game can be had by calling the clubhouse. Joe Gossens, a member of the Wisconsin amateur champs, who probably has one of the most colorful careers in valley basketball will be featured at Sunday's game. Joe had his biggest year a few seasons back when he was credited with more than two hundred and fifty buckets for one season.

The lineup for Niagara will show: Henry Kososki, six-and-a-half foot center, who weighs 150 pounds. Henry is a graduate of Niagara High school and was a center on the all state high school team. He is the holder of eight individual trophies and formerly was with the Niagara Badgers. He put in three years with Wisconsin state and upper peninsula semi-pro champions.

Romeo Perron, a five-foot-nine forward, who tips the scale at 162 pounds, graduated from Kingsford High school. He is the fastest man in the upper peninsula and holder of the U. P. dash record. Floyd LaLiberty, five-foot-seven-and-a-half forward, who weighs exactly 148 pounds is listed as the best forward north of Oshkosh. Floyd is a former member of the Niagara Majors and county champs. Lester Tapp, five-foot-three-and-a-half, midget forward, tips the scale at 124 lbs. He formerly was with Pabst Beers and Niagara Celts.

Walter Sanicki, five-foot-eight guard, weighing 158 pounds is holder of an amateur gold medal. He was high point man of Niagara Celts and stars on long shots. Walter averaged 18 points per game in the 1937-38 season. Frank Dwyer, six-foot guard, who tips the scale at 158 pounds, has the fewest points scored on him of any man on the team. He formerly was with the Northern Printers. Biff Estlinger, forward, formerly was on the Michigan all state team.

NEXT WEEK'S GAMES
7:30—Y. M. C. A. versus Taxes.
8:30—Wire Works versus Lutz Ice.
9:30—Merchants versus Elm Tree.

THE Merchants basketball team entrenched itself in second place in the Y. M. C. A.-City league last night at the association gymnasium when it defeated the Town Taxes, 47 to 25. The win enabled the Merchants to settle an old score with the Taxes. In the other games last evening, the Elm Tree Bakery five tipped the Lutz Ice by a mere 27 to 21 score, while the Y. M. C. A. walloped the Wire Works, 48 to 27.

Merchants took a 9 to 4 lead at the quarter and held a 19 to 11 edge at the half. Play continued even through the third quarter which ended 26 to 21 but in the fourth period Kapp was ousted for four personals and the Taxes had to continue with four men. The Merchants then poured it on and won in a walk.

The Elm Tree Bakery's 27 to 21 win over the Lutz Ice was something of a surprise for the Bakers were doped to pile up a big total on the last place club. The Bakers threw up a zone defense which had the Bakers constantly on their heels. Offensively the Icemen used a fast break to advantage. The Bakers scored from out on the floor, the Lutz team from under the hoop.

At the end of the quarter the Bakers led 8 to 4 and at the end of the half, 14 to 6. In the third quarter the lead was 21 to 12. Burton and Kriek were high scorers for the Bakers and Lutz and Emrich for the Icemen.

Every member of the Y. M. C. A. by a 12 to 11 count at the end of the quarter in their battle but the association team used its height and long passes and tap-in shots to take a 23 to 17 lead at the half and then win as it pleased. The Wires battled hard enough and scored often but couldn't match height. In the third quarter the count was 35 to 23 for the Y and in the fourth stanza the Wires counted only four points while the Y was getting 14.

Every member of the Y team got into the scoring column with Riley showing 11 points as tops. For the Wires, Lesselyoung garnered nine points.

Alumni Group Asks Gridders be Given "Cut" in Receipts

Spokane, Wash. —(P)—A "cut" in the gate receipts for football players was advocated today by the executive board of the Spokane Alumni association of Washington State college.

The board unanimously passed a resolution last night "recommending . . . that in its budget provision be made for adequate compensation to football players, so that Washington State college may again attain its high place in coast football competition and thereby continue to provide athletic facilities for the entire student body."

State finished last in the 1938 Pacific coast conference football race.

St. Joseph Frosh Turn Back Alumni

Both Girls and Boys Teams Score Basketball Victories

"It was a great day for the St. Joseph freshmen when both the boys and girls basketball teams scored victories over teams representing the class of 1938 at St. Joseph hall yesterday.

The freshmen boys took the class of '38 by a 25 to 20 margin while the girls registered a 31 to 19 triumph.

The frosh boys started off with an early lead and never were headed. The alumni showed a superior offense and defense but lost the tilt via the foul route. Smith starred for the alumni while Gage led the way for the frosh.

Ebben bucketed 22 points on 11 baskets for the freshmen girls while the sophs missed 12 of 15 free throws.

How Hockey's No. 1 Goalie De-Frosts His Opposition

By the AP Feature Service

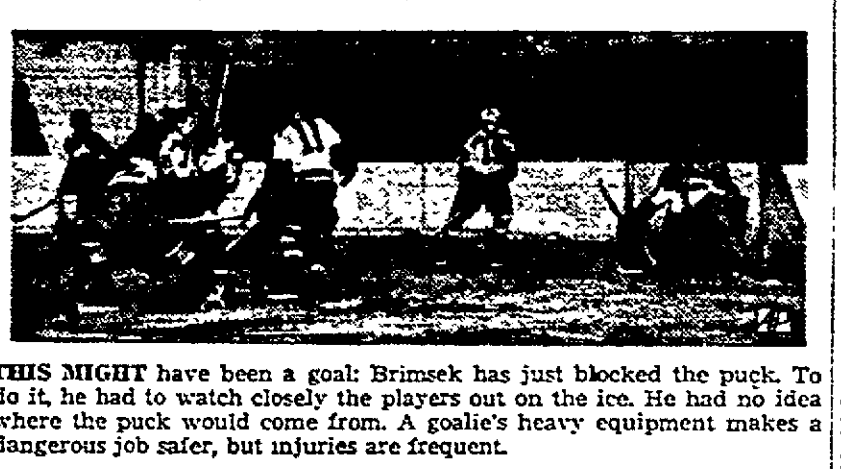

The goalie on a hockey team skates only in practice. During a game he stands in front of the goal, hops, twists, turns flips—to keep the other team from scoring. Outstanding goalie of the National Hockey league this season has been the Boston Bruins' rookie, Frank Brimsek. He prevented six of seven recent opponents from making a single point. His big hands helped. So did the coordination between eye and hand he learned as a baseball player. The pictures show Brimsek and high spots of his playing.

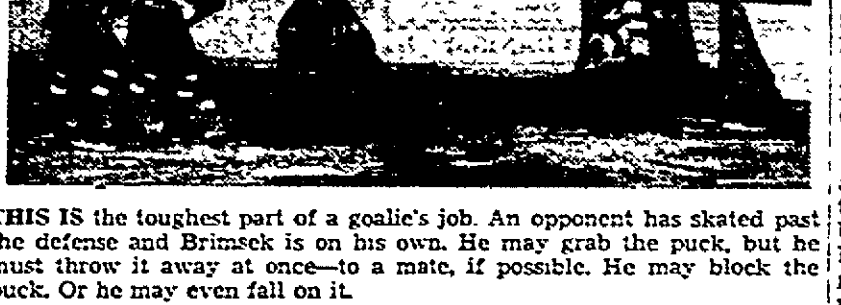

BEFORE A GAME, he puts on the special, short skates of a goalie—to make quick, short jumps and twists easier. A goalie's other special equipment: Shin pads, heavy gloves, a hockey stick with a broad blade. All help him fend off the vicious, flying puck.

THIS MIGHT have been a goal: Brimsek has just blocked the puck. To do it, he had to watch closely the players out on the ice. He had no idea where the puck would come from. A goalie's heavy equipment makes a dangerous job safer, but injuries are frequent.

THIS IS the toughest part of a goalie's job. An opponent has skated past the defense and Brimsek is on his own. He may grab the puck, but he must throw it away at once—to a mate, if possible. He may block the puck. Or he may even fall on it.

Wes Ferrel Ready For Opening Game

Sarasota, Fla.—West Ferrell, a temperamental right-hander, still a little peeved because of his unconditional release from the Washington Senators last midseason, will see him out in front for the New York Yankees, who took him on.

Ferrell joined this baseball players' winter colony last night. He said a recent operation to an ailing elbow was entirely successful, and predicted he will be a regular starting moundman with the world's champions this summer.

"There's no pain at all," he said. "I can move my arm in any position and it doesn't bother me. For the first time in six years I can use my normal windup, swinging my arms over my head."

"Although he admitted he didn't do so bad financially last year, he is still bitter at Clark Griffith for releasing him from the Senators. West got a cut of the world series money when he joined the Yanks.

"If Griffith had told me he wanted to get rid of me," Ferrell said, "I'd have been glad to pay him the waiver price of $7,500 for my release. Instead he gave me an unconditional release and made it appear I was washed up."

America OUT-OF-DOORS

WHAT ABOUT THE INDIANS? Some Truths About the Redskins by Russell Patterson

WRAPPED up with the outdoor life of the country is a wealth of romance about the Indians. Tales have been handed down from the early settlers which cover everything from war to hunting, from canoes to path-finding. The last word in outdoor skill has been credited to the Indians. But to look at the Indians of today and weave any romance around them stretches even the most agile imagination.

What are some of the reasons? Have the Indians slipped by themselves? Were they never as great as credited? Where lies the responsibility for the change? Certainly there is nothing romantic about the average dirty redskin met in the Middle West these days.

The writer is not ancient enough to remember the days of Indian warfare and all that it meant but did have the privilege of knowing many Indians intimately before our so-called civilization had taken its toll. The tragedy of present-day Indians is close to his heart because he knew Indians with qualities which were of the highest, Indians whom anyone would honor. He also knows Indians of today whom no one would honor.

Had May Virtues
Back at the turn of the century the writer was a youngster who spent most of his summers with the Chippewa Indians of northern Wisconsin. He played with the young braves and occasionally tugged at the long braids of their sisters. He learned a lot about the outdoors from these young people, and all that he learned was good. There was no viciousness among the Chippewas in those days. They were honest, skillful outdoor people with high ideals. True, many of the men and some of the women couldn't take it when it came to "Skidawaboo," as any strong drink was known to them. But the Indians were healthy and strong, good friends. Disease was not among them.

The Indian boys could run like deer. They took to baseball and football as though born to the games. They were only fair at water sports and, strangely enough, were not masters of the canoe at all. How they could handle a rowing boat in a heavy sea, though, and how they could cover ground on camping trips! How they could carry pack loads that would cave in the average white boy! They certainly had what it takes.

There was a dignity in the older men that the writer has never seen duplicated by any other race. There was a fine sense of justice, which he has never seen elsewhere.

Somehow a change has taken place. Most of the Indians today are almost too lazy to hunt. A few of those not on reservations guide when anyone will take them. Some work in lumber camps. But none show any definite ability to cope with modern conditions and eke out a reasonable living. Unless something drastic is done, the Indians will become human carrier pigeons and fade completely out of the picture.

Elm Tree Cagers Trip Gettelmans

Defeat Menasha Team by 50 to 34 Score for Fourteenth Win

The Elm Tree Bakery basketball team gained sweet revenge on the Gettelman team from Menasha at the Y. M. C. A. gym Wednesday night, 50 to 34. Earlier in the season Menasha sent the Bakery outfit to the showers on the short end of a 21 to 18 count.

The Bakers were an altogether different team this time. They hoped to take a quick lead when Bill Verbrick in two free throws and Krause duplicated. Then came the storm. From out of the back court Louis Grishaber pumped in five straight baskets, all of the one-handed variety. Thereafter the Bakers had little trouble. They led 18 to 6 at the quarter, 32 to 12 at the half, and 41 to 17 at the third quarter.

The win was the fourteenth in sixteen starts and the seventh straight for the Bakers.

Prices of Wheat In Rally After Slight Decline

Enough Buying Attracted To Erase Most of Early Losses

Chicago—(P)—A fractional decline of wheat prices today attracted enough buying credited to mills and elevators to cause a rally later in the session that erased most of the early losses.

Some purchasing by previous sellers, presumably to take profits, was noted. There were reports dealers may have removed hedges on wheat sold through the government for export.

Good demand for cash corn and some export business, which lifted corn quotations, helped steady the wheat market.

Receipts were: wheat 26 cars, corn 49, oats 38.

Wheat closed unchanged to 1/2 lower than yesterday, May 69 1/2, July 65 1/2, corn unchanged to 1/2 higher, May 53 1/2, July 54 1/2; oats unchanged to 1/4 up.

Certified Seed Potato Supplies Found Adequate

Increased Yield of 25 Per
Last Year

Wisconsin potato growers are being assured of the existence of adequate supplies of certified disease-free seed potatoes, according to information received by Fred Magnus, county agricultural agent, from the state department of agriculture and markets.

Showing an increased yield of fully 25 per cent over that of last year, the certified crop of Wisconsin totaled 296,500 bushels for 1938 according to crop reporting officials. Fully 1500 acres produced certified stock the past season with the bulk of this acreage being in Ononda, Langlade, Barron, Marinette, Price, Polk, Oconto, Door, and Florence counties.

Most of the Wisconsin certified seed crop, it will be noted, was grown in the northern counties. Acreages planted by individual growers ranged from one to 325 acres and averaged from eight to 100 acres in size. Approximately 100 growers in Wisconsin raised certified seed potatoes the past season. J. W. Brann, extension specialist at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, reports that the crop suffered little or no damage from late blight, while cooler temperatures and abundant moisture during the summer combined generally to produce higher yields and better quality.

Prices for certified seed stock are now at approximately the same level as last year, ranging, for delivery early in the season, from $1.25 to $1.45 per hundred pounds f. o. b. and from $1.50 to $1.60 for spring delivery.

Certified seed of Irish Cobbler, an early white variety, and Russet Rural and Rural New Yorker, both late varieties, is more in demand by growers near large consuming centers in Wisconsin and the nearby states of Indiana, Illinois, and Iowa, explains Brann. Yields and acreages of these varieties grown for certified seed in the state during 1938 were: Irish Cobbler, 98,000 bushels, 440 acres; Russet Rural, 16,500 bushels, 85 acres; and Rural New Yorker, 28,600 bushels, 143 acres.

The state's potato specialists say that increasing interest in Green Mountain, another late variety, is being shown, particularly by Long Island and Tennessee growers. The yield of certified Green Mountain seed in Wisconsin for 1938 was 13,300 bushels on 69 acres. It is expected that a larger volume of this variety will be grown in 1939.

The yield of certified Chippewa seed in the state for 1938 was 19,100 bushels on 85 acres. Katahdin on seven acres gave a crop of 1,120 bushels. Both are relatively new varieties. Of the two, Chippewa is the more popular in the state.

15 Tables in Play At Card Party of Greenville Grange

Fifteen tables were in play at the open card party given Wednesday night by South Greenville Grange at the hall. Women's prizes went to Mrs. William Wismer, first; Mrs. Ervin Schroeder, second; and Miss Lorna Prokrow, low. Harry De Bruin was high scorer among the men players; Henry Wismer was second; and Millard Ihde, low.

Noranna Trauba, Greenville, entertained 19 guests at a sleighride party last Monday night. After the ride the group returned to the Trauba home for a chili supper.

Young People's society of Emmanuel Lutheran church, Greenville, will meet Friday night at the parish school. Lois Schreier and Mae Huebner are in charge of the social hour which will follow the meeting.

Columbine 4-H club met Thursday night at the Ernest Paltzer home, route 3.

Farm Fruit Meetings To be Held in County

Jan. 20 has been set as the tentative starting date for a series of schools on better growing of farm fruit in Outagamie county, according to Fred Magnus, county agricultural agent. Meetings will be held two weeks apart and there will be demonstrations, talks, slides and movies, followed by practice meetings on pruning and grafting. Enrolments for the meetings now are being taken by the county agent.

Wins Place on State 4-H Club Honor Roll

Jerome Rettler, route 2, Black Creek, has been placed on the state 4-H honor roll for 4-H junior leadership and dairy work, according to information received by Fred Magnus, Outagamie county agent, from T. L. Betwig, state 4-H club leader. Rettler is a member of the Fairview 4-H club.

Surplus of Canned Vegetables Likely During Next Year

Large Reduction in Acres
Needed to Cut
Supply

Wisconsin farmers, who raise canning crops, are concerned over the prediction coming out of the United States Department of Agriculture that national supplies of canned vegetables are likely to continue above average during the next year unless there is a substantial reduction in planted acreages.

Reductions in the national acreages for 1939 of 25 per cent for green and wax beans, 35 per cent for green peas, and 5 to 11 per cent for sweet corn are needed to avoid a burdensome carryover of canned vegetables next fall, estimate federal economists. Under average growing conditions the remaining acreage would provide an ample supply of vegetables for our normal requirements.

Wisconsin is definitely concerned over the surplus, according to M. P. Verhulst, secretary of the Wisconsin Canners' association. Over 100,000 acres of canning peas, more than a third of the national acreage of 316,000 are raised annually in the state. In 1938, Wisconsin produced 9 million cases of canned peas out of a national total of 25 million cases.

Other Canning Crops
Other canning crops which the state raised in 1938 according to

Verhulst include 6,700 acres of green and wax beans out of the national total to 68,000; 27,550 acres of sweet corn out of the national total of 339,000; and 3,000 acres of tomatoes out of a national total of 391,000.

The canners' official reports the possibility of an increase in consumption of canned vegetables, which may have some influence on the surplus carryover. For example, the total disappearance of canned peas from the manufacturers' stocks for the year ending June 1, 1937, was 17 million cases, while for the next year it had mounted to nearly 21 million cases.

Canners are expected to contract for their 1939 acreages at prices based on the wholesale market level prevailing during December and January if they follow their past practice, according to the federal prediction. Prices of green peas, green and wax beans, and sweet corn are relatively low, while prices of canned tomatoes are at about the level which held during 1937-38.

Tonnages of all vegetables for processing in 1938, it is believed, was 10 to 15 per cent less than in 1937. However, because of the large carryover supply from 1937-38, total supplies are almost as large as the record of a year ago.

Tomato production in 1938, it was said, was 24 per cent less than in 1937 because of smaller acreages and below average yields. Supplies for the 1938-39 season are reported 11 per cent less than in 1937-38 and 8 per below average. Accordingly it was predicted that an increase of 18 per cent over the 1938 acreage would be needed to supply normal requirements and to leave a small carryover for the next season.

Sees Shortage of Seed Supplies for '39 Flax Planting

Nurse Crop Won't be Listed as Soil Depleting, Aamodt Says

Flax growers in Outagamie county and Wisconsin are being urged to conserve their supplies of seed for the 1939 planting.

Growers of the state ordinarily purchase most of their seed from out-of-state sources, and O. S. Aamodt, state agronomist, in a bulletin to Fred Magnus, county agricultural agent, reports that northwestern states have a flax seed shortage. Indications are for a greater demand for seed next spring.

Wisconsin farmers, he said, are showing more interest in flax as a crop. Barley, which competes with it as a cash crop, has pulled down flax acreages in the state during recent years, but there are definite signs of an upswing in the acreage planted to flax.

Under the provisions of the 1939 agricultural conservation program, acreage in flax will not be classified as soil depleting if flax is used as a nurse crop or if the flax acreage is matched with an acreage of soil conserving crops seeded alone provided a good stand of the conserving crop is established.

Such a concession was made under the program in order to increase production of flax in this county, he explains. Only about half of the flax used in the United States is raised here while the other half must be imported.

With a continued reduction in wheat acreages, Aamodt believes there is likely to be a greater amount of flax planted. When flax prices are about 50 per cent greater per bushel than wheat prices, flax can compete on equal terms with wheat as a cash crop. Right now, flax prices are about 100 per cent greater per bushel than wheat, which means that flax has the advantage.
